

90,000 Reasons To Say NO to acting out.... in 20 words or less

Posted by Shteeble - 08 Jul 2011 13:29

Okay Chevra, we have 90,000 to go. Please keep to one reason per post, and 20 words or less per reason.

When you feel like acting out, make sure to read all 90,000 reasons why you shouldn't first.

Because if we act out, every time someone tells us we will lose our connection to Hashem, we will care less and less

And the more we act out, the less we care and the more work we have to do to learn how to care gain, and the less motivation we have to do all that work so we can care again!!!

The more we act out, the more spirituality sounds like something from The Lord,of the rings, than it being the most real reality that exist.

Hashem will do anything to get us to be the best we can be,

The more we act out, the harder Hashem will have to shake us to get clean (chas vi shalom, no one should have to go through anything worse than we have to to get clean, let's just all stop what we are doing and GET CLEAN!!!)

I think it's because we don't actually want it.

We want the fantasy, but we really don't want the fantasy to become a reality, because we all know that lifestyle produces extreme unhappiness.

So why live in a fantasy of an unhappy reality?

Btw, who wants Lord of the Rings to be reality? I like my reality much better!

Anyone want a face-off/fun competition/just a friendly melee/argument....fun thing....on LOTR trivia? I have the books pretty down-like, sorta.

(OK, so it has nothing to do w/not acting out for 90,000 reasons, but it's fun!)

Imagine you were given 70 more years to live on the average life span. Wow! You gained 70 years!!!

What would you do with that time. If your answer to that question is to continue not to guard your eyes, then you've just answered another question: " Why should I stop doing this?"

Complete waste of time, pointless to live another 70 years or another 500 years.

And if you've decided to Guard your eyes then here is the best way to succeed:

"Seriously study Torah 2 hours a day" no excuses. (I heard this advice given to a working fellow by a well-known Rabbi)

Feeling in control of oneself can go a long way

[I'm sure it has been said]

we have 2 options. 1)to feel good now by acting out on our lust and 2) to feel bad now for holding off. with regard to control; if we use option 1 we will feel good now but feel bad later and there is no way to stop feeling bad, it will just have to pass. if we use option 2 then we have the power to chose when we want to feel good. so we are more in control with option 2.
