

Filter problem

Posted by Eye.nonymous - 22 Aug 2009 19:40

---

I realised a loophole in my filter--Although I installed K9 on my PC, I have a Mac powerbook which I use, but only rarely and for a specific purpose. I figured that since I use it rarely, and even then almost never for internet access, I don't need to worry about having a filter on it.

Until I started reading the BIG BOOK (The AA handbook). I am now concerned that, when I do need it, I'll accept some insane excuse to start searching around on the internet.

This evening I turned it on and tried to download K9. However, it's an older computer and the OS isn't recent enough for K9.

I am happy with K9 on my PC (after I added about 50 extra key words to block). Does anyone know which filter would be most comparable for MAC?

=====
=====

Re: Filter problem

Posted by the.guard - 23 Aug 2009 10:44

---

Why not search on google for "Free Internet Filter for Mac OS 9" or whatever OS it is... Google
)

=====
=====

Re: Filter problem

Posted by Sturggle - 23 Aug 2009 15:42

---

Can you upgrade your OS? I have a Mac and K9 is working pretty well for me.

=====
=====