

I think I've finally done it!

If any of you remember, I've struggled with ssa a VERY long time. I think I'm finally over it, although my methods may not have been so kosher I came away completely straight. I experimented with a friend ( no mishgav zachor) and decided it wasn't for me after it was over. Now I just want to focus on my (very) slight Internet addiction. I have a relatively strong filter in place that I do not control already but I am very tech-savvy and can get around it easily if I try. Can maybe someone set up some kind of email communication to keep me in check? Thanks!
