

Harry's Wife

Posted by jerusalemsexaddict - 30 Sep 2009 21:22

Yea,we all know her.

Sitting on the bus near you.

The guy next door's wife.

Your best friend's wife.

Bekitzur,everyone's wife but yours.

Hashem commands us:

Do not desire her!

Um,sorry?

I'd understand if You would tell me

"Don't have sex with her!"

But not to lust?

How can we be commanded something that is seemingly out of our control mostly?!

So I ask you the following:

Would you like to buy a nice porsche and drive cross-country?

Yea?

Nice.

Would you like to buy a nice spaceship and circle the moon a few times?

No?

Why not?

I'm sure it would be fun.

The answer is no.

Because it's not shayach.

It's not happening.

It's out of our reach.

The first bracha under the chupa is:

"Who forbade us the betrothed, and permitted the married (the one that you're married to)."

Why?

Because first we must understand that any other women are not shayach.

We must get that into our heads.

It is not happening.

It's like that spaceship.

This is the yesod of the Ibn Ezra.

When I spoke to my sex addiction therapist about this, he pointed out the following:

Think about any wife who would think of cheating on her husband.

Think of how difficult their relationship must be.

And you would go in there and destroy a family even more?

We do not want to enter this sugya, chevra.

Even "just looking"

Any wife who dresses provocatively we must feel bad for.

She's obviously not being shown enough love at home.

We must daven for them.

Not watch them as they walk.

See the other side of the story chevra.

Even pornstars.

What brought them to this place.

Oy!

I feel like crying :'(

Mr.B is right. We don't really want anything from anyone else. The bottom line is, that all the pleasure that happens during relations really goes on in our own minds and bodies. The climax is the exact same pleasure, whether you are with or without someone else. The whole "other person" thing was created only so that we should reproduce, but it really has nothing to do with the other person at all. It's all a master "trick" of the Creator, so that we pro-create.

If we can see lust for what it really is, we will understand that we actually have no interest at all in anyone but ourselves.

Rabeinu, there is no such thing as relations with a proper attitude?

I don't think that's what R. Guard meant. My understanding of what he said is that the physical side of it is the same regardless of whether or not it's with another person. But, if it's done to connect with one's spouse emotionally and spiritually, then that's a completely different story.

Kutan - absolutely. That's the punchline - if your interested in her. Interested in expressing the love you already have for her. Interesting in making her happy - and your pleasure is a byproduct, not the purpose (which ironically, they say makes every much better).

But when we fantasize about someone purely for their body - our fantasy has zero to do with love - or having relations purely based on physicality - has zero to do with love - so why would we care about the other person? We care about us, not them. We don't even want them. We want the experience - Tanach teaches us after Amnon raped Tamar - his ultimate, obsessed until illness and death fantasy - and she begged him beforehand to at least marry her - after he was done - he hated her with a terrible hate - because he never cared about her. And afterward she just became the symbol of his total lack of self-control, and he threw her out.

we should remeber at least that we should never ever throw ourselves out

Indeed, we should always welcome ourselves with open arms. We all need self respect and self love to get out of this and stay clean. And of course we need to remember that Hashem loves us more than anyone else. The deeper sources says that all the love that exists in the world, be it a mothers love or the true love of a husband and wife, is so we can understand how much Hashem loves us.

Just to continue on the point about whether it is the woman or the rush that we crave, I would like to share an experience I had whilst staying on a secular Kibbutz some years ago. There was a Russian immigrant who I shared a room with who was always bragging about how he lost his virginity to some famous Russian prostitute. One night after a couple of bottles of Vodka he admitted that in fact it never happened because as she was getting ready, she looked in the mirror and complained about the fact that she was suffering from dandruff. He said that after that he just couldn't go through with it because she was suddenly a real person and before that she had been a vehicle for his desires – a blank canvas for his lust. As soon as he was able to see her as a real person, it became incompatible with his desire.

I don't get the whole thing. She's nice to look at, even though you have zero chance of getting anywhere near her. The looking itself, the fantasizing itself - with all that accompanies it, is itself a pleasure that you can take from her. That IS shayach.

Yeah, in moments of great desperation, I wonder myself: Isn't fake pleasure a better alternative than none? And, in those moments, this is a very hard question to answer.

Fake pleasure is indeed better than none, if that is the only factor in consideration. During a nisayon, all this talk will not help. Techniques outlined by Guard in the handbook are the way to go.

but if we are talking things out beforehand, we CAN dealwith this question head on. And the answer is that we are ignoring part of the equation.

It really has to do with the whole nisyayon of our generation. R' Tatz has a fundemental talk, from HIS rebbe, that each generation has ITS nisyayom, that other generations will look back and scratch their head and wonder what WERE they thinking. Like socialism of 70 years ago. that is what the gemara means whe it says that every 70 years a star comes out of no where and confuses the sailors. some see this as Haley's comeet, and perhaps that is the pashut pshat, but the amkus is this, that every generation there is one nsayon that makes no sense to anyone but that generation. Being happy with fake things is ours. fake furniture. etc etc. who cares if it is REAL, as long as it makes me happy. But it only FAKELY makes the person happy!

There is a lot more to say, but my computer time is limited on chol Hamoed. IYH another time.
