

On line during Chol Hamoed?

Posted by Momo - 01 Oct 2009 07:05

There's a good chance I will have to work part of chol hamoed this year.

I was wondering if anyone else is also planning on being online during chol hamoed or if I'll be Mi Ke'amcha yisrael! Look how much they love Hashem, even when they can't break free of TV and Tuma, they don't hold themselves back from Hashem's Mitzvos. They truly LIVE in the Sukka, with all their craziness!

Momo,

you are never alone!!

i know, i forget that a lot as well,

but you asked,

and that's the honest answer.

I will, b'ezras HKBHY be here.

I don't know if I'll survive

w/o you guys...

As Mom likes to say,

I'm a baby,

and I'm not ready to fly from this nest just yet.

Dearest Momo Hatzadik,

I Noorah the smallest from the house of Amram will also be around chol hamoed.

I have it on good authority that the Rebbe Bardichev will host a virtual simchas beis hashoeva. uri will be there and will bring out the guitar and some new songs in honor of the event!

The simcha is going to be in the stratospheres mamesh like the Bais Hamikdosh.

We may even get R Yaakov Schwartz to come. The organizers are working on it as we speak. If

So momo Hatzadik, this forum is going to rock on chol hamoed, have no fear!!! ;D ;D

Rabiunu's Guard, Dov and Battelworn will do the juggling of the fire

I'm happy to hear I won't be all alone.

I have a bad feeling the Y"H will be working overtime on chol hamoed to counter the holiness of the holiday.

It's good that we are preempting his attack and fortifying our defenses in advance.

Pesonally I also have found in the past that the "baal duver" makes a special effort to get me down specially in times of holiness and simcha.

Momo, let's make a joint pact here and now, that we will ignore the bastad;) this yom tov and when he appears we tell "him get the he*k ouda here, its yom tov" ;D

He said he's keeping busy, but he did post a number of times yesterday (later in the day).
