Hi Duddy,

I cannot say that I have a neighbor who triggers me but the trigger is quite irrelevant. The issue is how to deal with the trigger. I cannot think of a better place to search for ideas than this wonderful group. You seem to be new around here so I am sure the administrators will send you a welcome post to help you get acquainted with this site and the wonders it can do for you.

When I get triggered, I call, yes you read that right, I actually pick up the telephone and call one of the friends i met here and share my lustful fantasy with him. I find that by sharing and shining a light on my ridiculous fantasy, the hook of the lust goes away and I am able to continue on with my life and forget the nagging feeling.

If you would like to communicate privately and anonymously, please send email directly to pischoshelmachat@gmail.com and I will respond.

In the meantime, WELCOME TO THE GREATEST PLACE IN CYBERSPACE!

welcome,

what is the question exactly?

should you leave your wife for her?

should you continue with 'other' relationship?

should you sever it?

do you have general issue with lust.

there are others on this site with similar issues.

WELCOME!!!!!!

How often do you actually see her? Can you go another way?

Shalom aleichem, Duddy!

Do you want to pursue the extramarital relationship, or not?

Are you satisfied with the level of closeness and trust and happiness in your happy marriage?

Would it bother you, would you regret if you 'did the worst'?

Answering the above may help clarify for yourself what you're really here for.

Keep posting and sharing- it does wonders!

Welcome to this wonderful place.

First of all you're courageous for reaching out here and expressing your problems, stick around great first step.

Just my 2 cents of advice,

You have to get to the core issue of your lusting as you mentioned that you do have some problem, she is not the problem, the way you will get to learn how to control and combat your lusting will have an effect on the neighbor problem.

Dear Duddy this neighbor of yours is a ?????? ??????? just like a piece of ??? ???. Nothing to get exited about when you encounter her . Its the same feeling and appeal you feel when you pass by a treifa restaurant and you look whats on display. The only woman that exists in your world is your wife . We Luster lovers , make this extremely common mistake . When we see her coming we should think to ourselves "there is some big piece of treifa coming up to my eyesight" . But instead , we got used to think " here comes a big WOW ! " . I hope i am transmitting this idea as clear as i can and my intention is understood . She could be a very special human being that if need to , she will have my full attention in the case she will need my help . Otherwise at any other case in my mind i have to eradicate the idea of appeal and change it for what she really represents for me which is a big piece of ????? . Anyhow there is a lot what to learn and share in these forums , the more you share the better for the oilam and for you. Hatzlacha !

The only real suggestion is to get to the underlying issues that make other women so attractive that we can't handle it. Of course, women are attractive. But some of us, myself included, become obsessed. If you can't control yourself with whatever normal people do to guard themselves, then I would look at why I find another woman to be such a big deal. (Assuming that she is not doing anything to get your attention.) She's just a woman, with a family, going about her life. Just like you, me and everyone else. No big deal, really.

There are plenty of attractive women who live near me. I minimize any opportunities I have to see them and I don't spend any extra time where they are. Not acting out my lust for a while (no porn, peaks, masturbation, less lusting after my wife) helped tremendously and I now can pick my kids up from gan without hyperventilating at the sight of the ganenet and without feeling like I should have all those women who were picking up their own tzoin kadoshim at the same time as me.

Ultimately, I think its about a mind change - looking at something within ME as the reason I lust, not HER. She isn't your problem.

At the same time, I feel for you very much because I know how painful it is to want something that we cannot have. Hatzlacha in finding what works for you!

I hear you.

I don't have any experience with chatting. There are many here who have. If I were them, I'd comment here and describe their journey...AHEM!

So as you are describing there is something more to it than just seeing her in the street, you need to be very open with yourself, are you ready to suffer forever like this or do you want to break 2 families, if you pursue eventually you will get caught, and as you came here instead of going elsewhere shows that you really don't want but its very hard and tempting, so dear friend reach out for real help maybe talking to someone (I am not experienced just trying to help), make some drastic changes immediately so that you get the ball rolling.
