

Filters

Posted by waydown - 01 Jul 2015 21:21

---

Ok some of you may have seen this question prior but i felt it deserves its own post. My work computer is solely owned by my corporation. I am not allowed to download any software whether its tracking systems or plain filters. There is a work filter but its far from perfect. Whats my eitzah? Quite my job? And this is standard for Corporate America. And no I can't call my IT and ask them for rights to download filters. It just doesn't work that way. Everything is a bureaucratic system. The IT guys down on Costa Rica follow orders. Its not a small hiemish company.

=====

Re: Filters

Posted by lomed - 01 Jul 2015 21:33

---

this is a standard shaale that should be discussed with ur Rav. Although Your rav may not be aware of your situation and struggles that you are going through, it is understood by any normal rav that a filter is needed and a necessity for any human being. The rav if he is bright enough should be able to advise you and guide you through how to deal with this. This is certainly not a joke.

=====

Re: Filters

Posted by waydown - 01 Jul 2015 21:37

---

Sorry yes I am too embarrassed to approach my rav and no way I am quitting my job. I came here because GYE is supposed to provide solutions for the anonymous. FYI according to TAG as long as there is some elementary filter its officially muter though not lchatchila.

=====

Re: Filters

Posted by lomed - 01 Jul 2015 21:39

---

What i wrote was that you dont have to be struggling in lust in order to need a filter. therefore you are not opening up your matzav to a Rav if you are discussing how to deal with a filter issue.

=====

====

Re: Filters

Posted by waydown - 01 Jul 2015 21:44

---

And my rav will say exactly what Tag will say. if you have a filter for porn the bdieved its OK. In fact TAG is the biggest posek on this inyan and thats what they told me.

=====

====

Re: Filters

Posted by lomed - 01 Jul 2015 21:51

---

i am not so sure if i agree with the last statement. I have different info and opinion on them.

=====

====

Re: Filters

Posted by waydown - 01 Jul 2015 21:53

---

Yes but my rov agrees and relies on their possukim. I know that for a fact

=====

====

Re: Filters

Posted by Gevura Shebyesod - 01 Jul 2015 22:10

---

If it's a big enough company they might actually be monitoring everything you do online anyway. Maybe something to keep in mind when you're tempted. Ayin Roeh V'Ozen Shomaas... Halevai Sheyehei Morah Shomayim Kemorah Basar Vadam.

KOMT!!

=====

=====

Re: Filters

Posted by waydown - 01 Jul 2015 22:23

---

Thats a good thought and somewaht of a deterrent. But I should tell you that,

1) They offically understand that their employees on occasion or while eating lunch or taking a coffee need a break. Thus they do allow facebook providing its not exceeive. Its an offical company policy.

2)Not during work hours (like sundays when I still must work remotely) they care even less what you do. As long as you don't virus up their system.

Its true that its a strong deterrent against porn. And many pron websites can virus you too. if a virus ever gets into their system you are fried.

But bottom line the deterrent not to chat with girls on-line or to browse you tube is very low.

=====

=====

Re: Filters

Posted by doingtshuva - 02 Jul 2015 13:00

---

Hi waydown

Getting a filter is wonderful, but we know that a filter isn't enough.

Whats about changing the setting of your office, like having someone sharing your room, or just have your screen be visible to others.

Did you try speaking to the IT? you never know maybe give it try.

I wish you lots of hatzluche

=====

=====

Re: Filters

Posted by waydown - 02 Jul 2015 14:42

---

Thanks doingtshuva,

1) I work in a cube not small office. Noone shares cubes in my corporation but yes my screen is visable to people whp pass by.

2) Forgive me for being blunt. It doesn't sound like you are familair with the nuiances of a large corporation. When a company has 25,000+ workers they set up systems how things work and thats it. There is no such thing as getting an IT guy to allow you to have admin rights. These are the rules and finished. The IT guy who is some hired worker out in Costa Rico is not calling the CEO for you because you have some religious reason. It just doesn't work that way.

=====

=====