

just a question...

Posted by hashemInegdi - 04 Aug 2015 08:32

hi. im starting to work on freeing myself of all the garbage, and i wondered if having a female friend (non-jewish) is a problem for healing myself? 1) im married. 2) we only chat on the phone. 3) we dont chat about sex, just friends.

=====

Re: just a question...

Posted by AlexEliezer - 17 Aug 2015 14:41

In this addiction, we each have our unique challenge to overcome.

Something precious and very dear to us we must give up in order to truly move on.

=====

Re: just a question...

Posted by jack - 17 Aug 2015 15:55

i once heard the following story: there was once a fellow walking with his rebbe down a street.all of a sudden, from across the street a bunch of girls were walking and screamed across the street - hey tom, how ya' doin'? well, the boy wished he could crawl into a hole.what would his rebbe say? well, the rebbe said: 'u know, i'm a better friend than them - i wouldn't embarrass you like that!' there are many lessons in this story-

=====

Re: just a question...

Posted by cordnoy - 17 Aug 2015 16:40

i have heard that one as well; pick a fight with her/them.

perhaps it's the right way; i don't know.

But either way, "half-measures are of no avail," so whenever you're ready to join recovery mode, you must take that big step.

We are waitin'.

b'hatzlachah

=====
=====

Re: just a question...

Posted by jack - 17 Aug 2015 17:18

as a matter of fact, this is a really good topic - because when i did my 90 days about 7 years ago, around day 70 i felt like i lost my 'best friend'.the guard wrote my story to r' twerski, and he penned what has now become famous on GYE, the story of the cocaine addict who thought the drug was his best friend.it's just i dont know how to show links. (i am a GYE old-timer-)

=====
=====

Re: just a question...

Posted by hashemInegdi - 20 Aug 2015 13:15

jack wrote:

as a matter of fact, this is a really good topic - because when i did my 90 days about 7 years ago, around day 70 i felt like i lost my 'best friend'.the guard wrote my story to r' twerski, and he penned what has now become famous on GYE, the story of the cocaine addict who thought the drug was his best friend.

This is an amazing thing!

=====
=====