

I'm done

I'm done. I fell again. I'm so tired of this. I also realized that it's been 2 years since it all started to get out of control. I don't wanna spend 10 more years like this. So that's why I'm done. I've tried everything that's in my mind to try to stop it, but now I realize that I always tried to keep a little control over the situation, always tried to manage things my way...but now I just understand this: we are addicts in recovery we can't fight it, we can't play around with it, WE JUST CAN'T It's only about surrendering. I can't heal if i keep giving in little sips of my drug. I can't heal if I'm holding my breath until the next triggering situation. Only by surrendering to Hashem I'm gonna be able to heal, not to fight lust or to become superman, just heal from all the garbage I'm dragging, and through that, be at peace with myself.

If you are struggling or about to fall, give this a thought, I hope this could help someone

If you feel done, then do every thing it takes to get sober.

It's a good siman and don't give up

Sometimes it's also about if and how we get up after we fall... Stand tall and put one foot in front of the other:)
