

Troubleshooting Index

Posted by Shteeble - 01 Jan 2017 10:51

This is a collection of links for troubleshooting problems that drive us toward addictive behavior because we don't know how deal with them.

This first post will be continuously edited bl'n.

There may be many lines that do not yet contain a link. This is because I wanted to put the problem down, before having the time to search for the solution.

Feel free to post problems with links to posts that teach how to deal with them. Thank you.

I am very tired, but there's so much that I need to do right now.

I feel like i really really need my drug right now.

I feel like I'm gonna explode if I don't get my drug very soon.

I want it so badly.

Is that a trick question?

Can you provide a clue?

He's terrified of the Markzman.

Can he outrun your gun?

Should I go into hiding?

I thought this was a site where we can play in the open.

Ok so this is open...

And when I text another guy here or someone goes to SA, what is that called?

Actually this is a BIG hiding ground for many guys...

Im just saying...

We should start a new game called lets see who can hide their head longest?

OSTRICH

Does it depend on the depth of his bottom??

Ok let me explain 1 segment

Are you hiding or out in the open??

If the Admin decides to anoint oil on your head and appoint you a moderator, people are gonna say "here comes trouble again". It's a great hiding login name but it's not a real name...

But maybe your parents called you "trouble" from the day you were born...?

Trouble: Mark is a very interesting person who really means well. He can be a bit intense at times but we still love him. You'll (maybe) learn that if you stick around. His point was that many people hide behind their username on GYE and don't actually open up to anybody. Opening up to real people can be where a lot of the growth comes from.

I don't understand the moderator/oil line, but I get the rest of it.

Thank you for clarifying.

There are many people on this site with funny or fake names; perhaps even the majority.

I wasn't raised as trouble, but high school and beyond, that was me.

Regarding your first question, I was stuck in this filth for plenty of years. Before marriage and during. I took some serious steps some years ago to get out of this rut, and thankfully, I am doing well now. Danger is always lurking, so I thought that joining here would help keep me stopped.

Thanks for the camaraderie.

Did someone say "open season"?

Is that like ducks or something?

Reminds me of the old cartoons.
