

Greatful Asher Yatzar bracha

So my main form of acting out has been masturbation. While it's been fairly easy to refrain during the daytime it seems that I struggle much more at night. Last night I woke up from sleeping a few hours only to find that my ayver was completely erect. Now most times when this happens I just let the erection run it's course and fall back to sleep. But last night it was different. My ayver was throbbing wildly and I just felt the screaming urge to grab it and do what I knew I had to do in order to relieve the incredible tension surging thru my body. I lay in bed trying to ignore my condition but it just wouldn't subside. Finally I went to the bathroom and attempted to urinate. B"H as the urine exited my body, so did all the pressure that had built up. I felt this incredible release and was so grateful that I was able to win this one. I said the bracha of Asher Yatzar with incredible thanks to HaShem for allowing my urinating to be what allowed me to be victorious!

Why would he have a problem? Nothing happened. He didn't masturbate and he didn't even have a wet dream. If some semen built up because he almost ejaculated while sleeping or even because he was erect, who cares? And I don't mean that flippantly, but why would you make an issue of that?

Sing,

My bad, overprotectiveness for the newbie. Please accept my apologies. Thought you might be joking only after I posted.
