

Marriage in general

Posted by forging on - 15 Sep 2019 19:59

I haven't been in gye for a while unfortunately, I did go to therapy witch kind of helped but not really. I understand that there are a lot of benefits to quitting porn, and I am trying hard to do so. But I've seen that one of the main benefits is to not lessen this great urge and purpose of creating children and repurposing it for selfish reasons. How watching porn can ruin the relationship you have with your wife in a very real way. There is a very good chance I will never get married just because of who I am religiously, even my Rosh yeshivah said so. (I only mention that so people don't come to me saying, "you don't have enough self esteem" I am just being realistic).How am I supposed to find the motivation to stop knowing that if I quit today most likely I will never have another orgasm on purpose in my entire life?

if someone could point me to some articles on this topic that would be super helpful, or your own thoughts on the matter would be great too.

Thanks so much

Baruch Hashem I am engaged! It's really funny how Hashem works things out even if it makes no sense. The forum has helped me throughout the years so I think you deserve to know.

Yep! it just took a literal miracle for us to meet. Hashem runs the world 100%. Agav I got less modern and less chasidish but for sure it could have worked anyway. Also somehow at the same time less yeshivish. I guess I just became more me.

Yeah Baruch Hashem the rabbi is not stupid with his head in the sand. Depending on what he says I will tell him what he wants to know.
