Hey guys!

I keep having a situation which I find extremely disturbing to myself. I hate any physical touch with my adorable 3 year old son . I know or believe that he needs to be hugged and kissed, held on my lap etc - healthy affection and love & I do my utmost to give it to him despite the difficulty to me in it. I often feel absolutely repulsed by the feeling of touching him in any way and at the same time occasionally get an erection from the very touching that I am repulsed by. I feel so . I feel like a monster, an ogre, a rotten fly & maggot infested moldy

Please help!!!!!!

Dear Swift Eagle,

Please think about the following, When you were a child were you hugged and kissed?

If no, its okay.

Your children need your affection, put yourself on the side and just feel what they need from you.

No, you are not an animal. Take a chill, and relax.

Focus on them and you will see showing affection, playing and reading books to them won't be an issue.
