Bein Ha'zmanim is rapidly approaching and I will be going home where I face many difficulties that b"h I do not have to deal with in yeshivah. There are several people in my house who have unfiltered computers that I am able to access. To make matters worse there will be several days when I will be the only one in the house the whole day. I am looking for eitzos from the oilam how to deal with this situation.

Do you have to use those devices? If not it's probably best to make a commitment to not using them at all, treat them as you would muktzah on Shabbos. This has worked for me in the past.

Find something that can hold you back, whether a shevuah if necessary, or not having permission to touch them, or a knas (monetary or embarrassing)
