

Day 120

Posted by 5Uu80*cdwB#^ - 09 Jan 2022 00:07

Gut vuch to everyone. Only with Hashem's help am I still clean right now. Day 119 and 120 were the hardest days for me in an extremely long time. It all started when I heard someone make an absolutely disgusting remark on Thursday and I couldn't get it out of my head, where it started festering and conjuring up old memories. Imagery that I thought was long gone was popping up as if I just saw it. Out of nowhere I found myself in a growing battle that got worse and worse and worse. I was hanging on and fighting like I hadn't had to since around days 20-30. I had let my guard down. I thought I was in the clear. I was wrong. The yetzer hara was in hiding for nearly 100 days until the perfect time to strike had come. It got worse and worse until this morning. At 4 am I woke up in so much discomfort that I entered the all too well known pre-fall internal debate of whether or not to just give up and "get it over with already". Historically, when I get to this point I usually have a close to 100% fall rate; the debate is just a formality. I think I have probably only emerged from being so close to falling 4-5 times in my whole life, today being one of them. I was hanging on by mere threads. I was in extreme discomfort. I can't describe it. I just needed the physical relief of doing that mayseh. I went back to sleep until 6:30 when I woke up and I decided that I would either take the battle to the beis medresh like the Rambam says at the end of ????? ????? or literally fall to the lowest depths ??? on Shabbos Kodosh itself. I pulled myself out of bed and ran to shul where I called out to Hashem for help and was blessed with an uninterrupted 2 hours of focused learning in before Shacharis. Hashem blessed me and saved me this morning. After the seuda during the day, though, the fight was at full flare again. I know this sounds bad, but I just wanted Hashem to let it come out by itself while I took a nap because I couldn't deal with the thought that I will have to tolerate more pain and keep battling for at least another week. I am doing OK at this moment, but I am scared about tomorrow and the coming week. I truly don't know if I have the strength in me. I feel like a battered warrior ready to collapse. I tried to tell myself today how great and loved I must be by Hashem, but it's still so hard to feel geshmak when one of the most pleasing physical experiences in the world to me is a gross violation of halacha. Thank you everyone here for helping me to keep moving forward.

=====

=====

Re: Day 120

Posted by 5Uu80*cdwB#^ - 01 Nov 2023 21:24

Day 782:

I've been experiencing some negative emotions over the past two weeks. I think chief among them is frustration. Frustration is such a toxic emotion. I'm trying to stay positive but of course it's an avodah.

Hashem, please help me to make it through these turbulent waters. I feel like a small boat in a big sea. Hashem, please help me to see that You are guiding me every step of the way. Help me to not turn to addiction. Help me to turn to You alone.

=====

Re: Day 120

Posted by 5Uu80*cdwB#^ - 19 Nov 2023 03:49

Day 800:

Baruch Hashem!

=====

Re: Day 120

Posted by frank.lee - 20 Nov 2023 15:41

Good to see you, 5u...

=====

Re: Day 120

Posted by 5Uu80*cdwB#^ - 07 Mar 2024 17:32

Day 909:

Baruch Hashem, I'm still shteiging! Thank you, Hashem, for helping me to beat this addiction for 909 days and counting using all of the tools that you have endowed me with to do so and thank you to my friends here on GYE for your continued support! I have been soaring in my Avodas Hashem over the past several months and have attained new heights in my learning and davening, among other great new developments in life.

Remember that lust and fantasy are the root of the whole addiction. If you slaughter the root cause, the entire snake will die. If you just attack the symptoms, you are setting yourself up for failure.

=====

=====

Re: Day 120

Posted by Heeling - 07 Mar 2024 18:52

Wowwowowow!

Chazak U'Baruch

=====

=====

Re: Day 120

Posted by chancy - 07 Mar 2024 19:40

Dear 5U

I am happy to hear that! BH!

I would love to hear from you what tools you use to fight the root cause.

Of course I know that just working on Porn and Masturbation is not enough. You would be white-knuckling....

Of course I also work on not having or maintaining a fantasy or wallowing in lust.

However, I still dont know how to not have fantasies or lust? I have a very fast perception and my mind will go there instantly before i have a chance to not think.

Any Ideas or advise would be very helpfull indeed.

=====

=====

Re: Day 120

Posted by 5Uu80*cdwB#^ - 07 Mar 2024 20:22

chancy wrote on 07 Mar 2024 19:40:

Dear 5U

I am happy to hear that! BH!

I would love to hear from you what tools you use to fight the root cause.

Of course I know that just working on Porn and Masturbation is not enough. You would be white-knuckling....

Of course I also work on not having or maintaining a fantasy or wallowing in lust.

However, I still dont know how to not have fantasies or lust? I have a very fast perception and my mind will go there instantly before i have a chance to not think.

Any Ideas or advise would be very helpfull indeed.

There is of course a lot to say about this. I don't think the reality is that in long term recovery you will never or even almost never have a fantasy or thought of lust after being where we have been in our past. Rather, lustful thoughts and fantasies will likely enter our minds on occasion still (certainly a lot less frequently than before, though), and I think a lot of recovery for me has been reprogramming how I react to these occasional thoughts of lust in the immediate few moments of their entering my consciousness. When I first started my recovery and was still in the throes of addiction, the entrance of a lustful thought into my brain meant that I was "doomed to masturbate because I have no choice now, it's inevitable, there's a thought of lust in my head, I have to masturbate at one point or another now so I may as well get it over with now." This, of course, is patently absurd to the recovered mind. There is nothing farther from the truth. This is classic addictive thinking. You absolutely NEVER "HAVE to masturbate." That is what we are convinced of, though, ??? addiction. Now, though, 909 days into recovery, when a thought of lust enters my stream of thoughts, I usually have the maturity and experience to realize that this is nothing more than a thought. I can usually genuinely and calmly think to myself, "Huh, okay. That's a lustful thought. Anyway, I have things to do now. Let's move on.", and I just let myself move on without forcing the thought away and without checking to see if the thought is still there five minutes later. I simply let my mind relax and move on. It was by no means always this easy for me to move on from such thoughts. But this is ultimately central to success. The more you can relax the mind and simply let yourself slip into your next productive activity, the better off you will be.

There is really so much to say here and I don't have the ability to write down much more write now. This is a start. Please let me know if this was helpful for you and if you would like me to elaborate on something more.

I really wish for you the best. May Hashem help us all in our continued recovery.

=====

====

Re: Day 120

Posted by chancy - 07 Mar 2024 20:36

Thank you for your reply.

I am of course working on the same thing. I am BH able to move on, but the thrill of the first second that the thought pops into my head makes it hard for me to keep doing it for long.

I get upset, thinking why do I have such lust? why cant i be normal and not think about this? I m not interested in that now! In short, im still fighting them, im afraid to simply let them go because what if i stop fighting and they actually sink in?

=====

Re: Day 120

Posted by 5Uu80*cdwB#^ - 08 Mar 2024 02:00

chancy wrote on 07 Mar 2024 20:36:

Thank you for your reply.

I am of course working on the same thing. I am BH able to move on, but the thrill of the first second that the thought pops into my head makes it hard for me to keep doing it for long.

I get upset, thinking why do I have such lust? why cant i be normal and not think about this? I m not interested in that now! In short, im still fighting them, im afraid to simply let them go because what if i stop fighting and they actually sink in?

Thank you for your response.

1. Don't get upset at yourself when you have lustful thoughts that you didn't ask for. This is actually a very important first step. You need to have compassion on yourself. When a lustful thought enters your mind that you didn't ask for, have compassion on yourself. Realize you are human. Do not attack yourself. If you asked for it or were ???? (no filter, went were you shouldn't have, etc.), that's a different case and I don't want to talk about that case now. Let's focus on the case when you didn't ask for the thought. Have compassion on yourself. It's okay. It's just a thought. Just move on. It will go away when you let go of it.

2. You say you are still fighting the thoughts. That's the problem. Stop fighting the thoughts. This is not a battle with thoughts. It's just a release of them from your mind. You just need to let go of the thoughts and move on from them. It's like someone holding onto scalding-hot metal bars and screaming in pain and the onlooker is saying, "Just let go of the bars and you'll be okay!"

You are fighting your thoughts. Don't fight them. Just let go of them. And don't beat yourself up for having lustful thoughts if you are doing everything you can to limit your exposure to sexual content of all types. If you are still exposed to such content in any way, you have to immediately eliminate that exposure. That's ????.

Does that help?

=====
=====

Re: Day 120

Posted by 5Uu80*cdwB#^ - 10 Jun 2024 17:55

Dear GYE friends,

I am now >1000 days clean. Baruch Hashem!

I want to reiterate the same things I've been posting about for the past several hundred days. See my past posts for this content.

Keep up the good work to all here on GYE who are working on these inyanim.

You are important.

Take care.

P.S. Dam Hayomi of Mishneh Brurah with Dirshu begins Hilchos Shabbos today. Join!!!!

=====
=====

Re: Day 120

Posted by redfaced - 10 Jun 2024 18:14

MAZEL TOV!!!!!!

=====
=====

Re: Day 120

Posted by 5Uu80*cdwB#^ - 27 Oct 2024 21:44

Hi all,

BH, now at day 1143. Thank you GYE!

Realize that fantasy + ?????? ??? ?????? is an addiction and must be dealt with just like any other addiction (e.g., alcohol or heroin addiction). That's a necessary realization (in my experience) to begin the trek to freedom.

Hatzlacha.

=====

Re: Day 120

Posted by chancy - 29 Oct 2024 16:46

Who else thinks that 5Uu80*cdwB#^ should finally change his name a to something that can be pronounced???

I would love to say "Mazel tov 5Uu80*cdwB#^!!!! but i cant, Im not an AI machine.

=====

Re: Day 120

Posted by proudyungerman - 29 Oct 2024 16:51

chancy wrote on 29 Oct 2024 16:46:

Who else thinks that 5Uu80*cdwB#^ should finally change his name a to something that can be pronounced???

I would love to say "Mazel tov 5Uu80*cdwB#^!!!! but i can, Im not an AI machine.

Whoever agrees, please thank chancy's post!

=====