I disassociated, my brain does that when my emotions are too overwhelming and i cant function. Basically my emotions are turned off (my negative emotions) I cant feel any of my 5 yr old feelings right now. Problem is, when i disassociate from my feelings i become what Pete Walker calls a "human doing" i need to be stimulated 24/7 in order to feel alive. I'm always up and ready to do. Its nice because it feels good to not have negative feelings and be so outgoing and exciting, but since i need to be stimulated 24/7, whenever im not stimulated i get turned on. I go straight to anything sexual. Even being on GYE makes me turned on. Im a little lost. And yes my streak doesnt make a difference to me because i feel like im on day 1 sexually. (Im turned on the whole day)

I met HHM. Finally met someone in person. It was a great trial run to see how my mind would react. I thank HHM profusely for giving me the space and time for the tryout.

At the same time there's a part of me that feels judged near anyone that cant accept me if i want to watch porn. Therefore, its very upset at me for ruining its trust in me. So I need to take a break from meeting anyone that would look down at the part of me that wants to watch porn. (anyone basically too religious). I have not been able to function due to this part of me that doesn't feel safe around even me anymore because i ruined its trust in me. So going through a little of a hard time right now. Not feeling safe and secure with myself. But I'm beginning to rebuild the trust in myself to keep me safe. I commit to keeping myself safe for the next week no matter what. Even if a different part of me wants to push me, i will not allow it. I will keep them safe.

I'm sorry to read about the hard situation your in right now, it must really feel hard and challenging. I hope you feel better soon.

Wanted to quickly comment on the quoted post above. I'm sorry that part of you feels judged, I also have parts that are very sensitive to judgement, although I'm better now sometimes bh.

Just wanna share something I learned from being here some time, maybe it will resonate with you, and can be of a help. There are many ways, methods, modalities, and ideas how to work on those struggles, some are very different then the other, a 12 steps guy, cannot partner with a IFS guy, even if both respect each other and have the same goals, they just speak different languages, and look at things differently on a very basic level. In fact I think that such a partnership will only brake them both.

Lets say if a 12 steps guy will say only G-d can take away my lust, and the IFS guy will try to explain to him that every person has a Self that can be in the driver's seat and take care of the lust firefighter, the guy will feel misunderstood, and even judged- as If he is expected to be able to fight his "sickness". Now we know that non of them are judging the other, but they are taking a very different approach to this journey.

I think that might be what happened here, I don't think anyone judged your wanting to act out, its just has a very different language to this struggle, and feeling misunderstood, can feel judged at times.

Personally, I think that is one of the main benefits of the 12 steps program, having a fellowship that speaks your 'language', I've always been jealous of that part.

Wonder if any of yhis makes sense to you.

Wishing you the best brother.

Only 12 steppers who don't love and accept the part of them that wants to watch porn will not be able to partner with an IFS guy. And only an IFS guy that doesn't "put it onto g-d" will not be able to partner with a 12 steps guy.

Alright, I appreciate your opinion, and agree to disagree.

1) I do think that some models disagree on a basic level, including IFS and 12 steps, when a IFS guy says G-d takes it away, he's talking Emunah, but it's not part of his work on recovery, but in SA it's literally a miracle that G-d does without any understanding why. So if a 12 steps person wants to help a IFS guy and starts talking about miracles happening it's just not the right message, and the same the opposite.

2) even if they agree, the model puts focus on other stuff, imagine a 12 steps guy tells you to make an inventory of everyone you fear/resent, or tells you to make amends to them, and he can't stand you not putting focus on this important step 4, he's not helping you he's breaking you. Same goes when a IFS guy puts pressure on a 12 steps guy to focus on accepting every part of his, or building a relationship with those parts.

They might have the same destination, but the are taking very different routs, be careful with exchanging GPS directions with one another.

Again, I appreciate and respect your right to disagree, you are a smart man.

IM now going to fully agree with you! You are clear, concise and your argument is true.

That being sad, it makes me sad that so many people out there cant accept parts of themselves, and instead try to force parts to forgive and forget, which isn't possible if the part doesn't want to. You can squash that part and ignore it, but that doesn't help either because it is still affecting us even if we squash it. Its actually affecting us more if we squash it. When we bring things to our conscious minds, they have less control over us. So anyone working on step 4 in the 12 steps, i feel bad for them if they don't know they can accept anger, resentment and hate. Even if we say we forgive, if a part of us doesnt forgive, its simply not true. And one can never know if they are ready to forgive, if they cant accept the part of them thats angry, hurt, and hateful.

I know MANY guys in SA that have done their 4th step and are doing just fine...

Of course people are doing fine. But there's so much more than just fine. There's ACCEPTING all our parts and feelings and learning to love all of ourselves, including uncomfortable parts of us that may be hateful, be resentful, want to hurt someone, are angry, want to watch porn etc.

Because always remember, if we cant accept a part of our self, then its impossible to accept that same part in someone else. For ex: if we cant love the part of ourselves that wants to watch porn, we will never be able to embrace and love the part of someone else that wants to watch porn. And if we don't love the part of a person that wants to watch porn then we aren't really loving him, because we are only 100% loving him, if he doesn't watch porn. That aint love.

Lets start loving for real!!!!!!! #reallovestartswithselflove#everyparteveryfeelingeveryexpierece

What a disaster this night has been. For starters I didn't learn a word today. That always makes me feel empty. Then i sat down to watch the team i follow occasionally, and they lost big time. I was really angry. Not only that, I had 2 beers while I was watching the game.

So i left the bar were i was watching the game very tense and upset just steaming with tension and still a tiny buzzed (legal though. My abs levels were under .08). On my ride home I passed by an adult store. I have gone into adult stores before. I had so much tension inside, that I turned around and went back to the shop. I just sat outside the store in my car. Thank god I'm no longer addicted as much as before, so I was able to "pass up the opportunity" and start driving home -thank you Hashem.

then..... sirens..... and cops pull me over. On my way to turn around and head back to the store, i had made a left turn out of a parking lot, and the thing was, I didn't realize there was a

For someone with your history to experience so much tension and make the statement "I'm not masturbating and I'm not going any farther down the rabbit hole" is incredibly heroic. Keep it up tzaddik! May Hashem help you out of all the agmas nefesh this experience caused - (and be advised there are guys that have good track records fighting tickets that can stand in on your behalf that don't need to know where you were going).

It seems that Hashems loves you soo much that he even tried to uphold you from going to the adult store!. He sent police to that area, He put a median right over there, He made sure you shouldn't notice it, He made sure you shouldn't take a diff way to the adult store put instead make a U-turn so the cops should hold you from going there.

Hasehem LOVES YOU and he's trying to show you how he's helping you overcome these desires. He sees your hard work and is definitely shepping nachas from you!!
