Are they in spam or regular inbox? I get a ton of those in spam still- what I've been doing is waiting for spam to reach 400 emails, then take off my glasses (can't see clearly without them) and then delete the whole lot

There may be an opt out button but it's too risky clicking each email opening it up...

I suggest just getting a new email if it doesn't complicate things and delete this one

There are certain keywords or email domains which you can block in your gmail filter settings. Try that

If you're using gmail you can go to your spam folder and right on top it says "Delete all spam messages now". Click that and you don't have to open any of the messages.

Thanks, I did it and it worked. But - when I did, I still saw the list of explicit subject titles. To be honest it was enough to make me go all dry in the mouth... (embarrassing and sad, but my reality). BH just clicked the delete button and they all went away.

I really don't wanna get that close....

So I am going to try one of the other methods next time

I used to get them . BH They stopped coming months ago. I believe it unfortunately has something to do with (y)our search history

I Don't think so...

I believe strongly, that Google is promoting those emails cuz if Chv"s you click the link, its a ads.google..... something like it.... so they send those emails to many Gmail accounts

And I Realized, Google is here to promote shmutz
