

why did god make us this way?
Posted by tzvikifine - 24 Dec 2023 16:12

I think the hardest struggle for me is understanding what god really wants from me:

what's the point of such intense struggles?

we know that we're only given tests that we can withstand, sounds good in theory, but in reality how many of us actually believe that they can withstand their test?

we also know the bigger you are the bigger your nisoyon, but only the low ones do we see falling and falling over and over, but the great ones? I haven't noticed them falling, ever.

the whole idea that the greater you are the bigger your test doesn't make sense, they're only great because their able to withstand their nisyonos.

basically how can we compare our struggles to theirs if were falling every other day and their not?

also looking now at the future I know I'm gonna fall, its reality, its part of life, but god doesn't let me fall!!! ill be going to hell!!!

so basically god wants me to deny the reality that HE created?!

?I've been struggling with m and p for quite a while, I got married and it only got worse, but these questions have always been on my mind.

if anyone can help clarify or comment please do, thanks

So lets at least be clear what we are arguing about...

I think rainbow cake isn't as bad as some would have us believe it is.

On a more serious note, how did we get to 11000 deleted users on GYE??

doesn't make sense. It must be numbered differently, not just that the first guy was deleted user1 and so on. I guess we can only pray that all of the deleted users either moved on and are in a good place, or will come back when the time is ripe, or get the help they need somewhere else.

My daughter asked me for rainbow cake this Friday for Shabbos - I was like "Shefela - how do I explain this it looks nice but..."

Maybe Markz can help us

Every user has a user number in the system. I believe they are assigned randomly.
