I dont think anyone here knows your parents. Hard to answer...

What do you seek to gain if it goes well?

it all depends on your relationship with them, obviously if its a good and healthy one then they would do all for their kids, but if not it might fireback the wrong way

There isn't one size fits all for this. I told one parent that I an on GYE but never told them that I struggled. I am sure they figured out that I struggled and I have personal experience but they don't know what my struggles were. The other parent I didn't tell anything because it wouldn't go well. Nobody but you can answer this question for yourself. You also have to figure out what you are trying to gain. The parent I told respects me a lot and it felt good to share that I am helping others.
