

WHERE R U?

Posted by Eye.nonymous - 10 Jan 2010 14:42

I have a thought, and I don't know where to post it. So I'm starting a new thread.

You know those people who come along and post, and then disappear. Or maybe you remember someone's story, but lost track of it and forgot who it was. Maybe you have seen them?

So, here's a thread for follow-up.

Perhaps I have an explanation:

"The candle that burns twice as brightly, burns only half as long." (Bladerunner). :-[:-[:-[Great quote, though.

Maybe people OVERDO it when they 1st join the GUE community. Then they fizzle out. And disappear.

So, maybe we can find them again.

Or, at least let them know we're thinking of them.

One person I was wondering what happened to was Ben. His last major post was here (provided this link works)

rehab-my-site.com/guardureyes/forum/index.php?topic=1325.msg32836#msg32836

Also, there was someone who announced that he's an older buchor, and he was sure this nisayon is holding him back from marriage. He was hoping that his count to 90 days would bring with it the hashgacha pratis to find his shidduch.

Does anyone remember who he is, or know how he is doing?

Nope but I'm one of those ppl, who don't have regular internet access on a regular basis. So I sorta come and go depending on the tekufah.

It's possible these guys have found other solutions to their problems.

GYE is great, but it isn't the only option.

Pintele was advised to stay offline by his moreh derech.

He is really quite a person, by the way.

He lives in our neighborhood, although I have the zchus of being closer than him to the Rebbe.

Anyway, PM me if you'd like to meet him in real life.

you guys sound like a bunch of old grannys who cant bear to see their little birds leave the nest!

Let it go. As the words of the Great say when leaving the mental home after being cured: "We hope to never see you again!"

Thank gd we hope they been freed and have moved on in life
