The Y"H comes, and with different words each time, tries to "remind me" of how sweet it is..how good it feels.

And I just laugh, because I can still remember how LOW it made me feel - and how GOOD I feel when i move forward and don't listen to him!

He's offering a delicious cake, but if we'd look closely, we'd see that under the frosting, it's just mold! Not even moldy cake - there's just mold, no cake at all!

Been there, (7 months of tzidkus) done that, fall. And i only have a few pieces of advice

1. Follow my footsteps carefully, and see when they lead into the ravine below.
2. look at my failures like a pessimist, and realize that my YH works the night shift by you
3. Why don't you write-out the post you plan on publishing, in full detail (of the loss of retzifus), and post it. Make sure to stress the agony of loosing the retsifus, and speak-out every reason that you wish you 'didn't do it'. An now that you have bechira chafshis, choose?

Sorry to butt-in and answer on Bards behalf. (Are any Americans on the forum or are you all preoccupied with the SuperBowl?)

It is Yiddish and means 'Dancing and being happy'

If anyone is watching the Super Bowl, I sure hope they're walking away for the halftime show and for the commercials.

Sometimes we "see" something triggering

We need to not think in to it or about it

Just block it out of our minds ASAP

Say " yupp she is ____ but she is not my problem

And move on walk run dance slide away!!!
