

I'm NOT an Addict...

(The LIGHT-er Side of Addiction)

Addicts - an Intro:

Like it or not - that is how it goes.

I'm not a big fan of labels...they are TOO limiting.

Why should I have to fit into someone else's definition - rather than create my own.

So I decided from here on out - or for at least the duration of this thread, I am calling myself an ADD-TIC.

That is right!

My symptoms, my disease...and now MY LABEL!

I enjoy ADDing, and related numerical things - like gematria related to recovery or gaining a better understanding of who I am and the world I live in; and jokes about TICS (and on occasion ants, too. But please be warned, one should not cross breed and ANT with a TIC because you wind up with a bunch of crazy ANT-TICS !! :D :D What else would you have expected from an ADD-TIC !! )

So grab hold of your can of RID - lighten up, and let everyone know you are on-board and proud to be an ADD-TIC!!!

so far so good.

I was thinking about being in the DARK

I decided that the next time I am about to slip - before I slide into the darkness, I am going to clasp my hands over my head, stand in front of a mirror, think about my:

I.M.A.G.E

spell the word out loud, and then SCREAM:

LIGHTBULB!!!!

I hope that my laughter will shed some light onto the darkness (in advance) !!!

how come the bee was wearing a kippah?

ans: he did not want to be mistaken for a wasp.

speaking of which - I think there must be some kind of wasp nest inside my head...pesach shopping with the family seems to make my head feel like its buzzing!

q: what kind of gum does a bee chew?

ans: bumble gum
