Hey, "Rising up", it was rage's fault to begin with because he posted:

...as for me, praise be to the gunslinger up top, i have now equaled by second longest streak, as sad and meager as the streak has been...i also have been progressing over lust for the first time since my four month sobriety...just starting to shake off them cobwebs now....

I still say he aught to keep 'em shakin'!

Listen, leave Johnny Cash out of this one. Sitting for an hour on a train ride and thinking about how crappy lust is? That's no way for a nice jewish boy like you to be meandering through King's County!

OK....it's better than the alternative, sure...and it's really, really better than the other alternative....but my wish for you is that our gunslinging merchant parole-Officer up in the sky helps us all spend our time doing something more fun than thinking about how bad off we'd be if we were out there 'accoutrement-hunting'.

There are so many more fun things we can do on a train, like reading stuff from Arthur Conan Doyle; planning where we are going now and what we are to do when we get there and asking Hashem to help us with each of the things we are supposed to do there; trying hard to count the number of lights that flash by in the tunnels (not easy)...(especially out loud); trying to actually rip through shnayim mikra v'echad targum for a change; reviewing the latest daily dose of dov puree (hah); Thinking through a gratitude list for our stuff; closing our eyes and trying to guess what nationality the guy sitting next to us is - *by smell!...and lots of other engaging things like that.

C'mon, there are plenty more useful things to get busy with than putting out fires, no?

Really though, you must be doing some tiny little thing right lately (only a really tiny little itsy bitsy thing, probably) and I understand it's all about where we need to be right now.

Just a thought.

Keep smiling brother, shlit"a.

How about trying this one - realizing with gratitude that I don't need to waste my time and energy on Lust!

This has lots of advantages, including reminding myself that it's not depriving me - just the opposite!

What rav miller would have done on the train:

Thank you Hashem for not making me a . .

Thank you hashem for not making me a "kushi" ah einikkel fun chum.

P

Thank you hashem. I wear business clothes. Not ripped jeans

Thank you Hashem for giving chachma to goyim to make a train so I can commute without a hosre and buggy

Do you know how slow a horse goes?

Thank you hashem I can go on the train

Thank you hashem the train is moving
