

Save hundreds of Neshamos

Posted by Hundreds of Neshamas - 24 Jan 2011 06:01

This is an emergency situation. I am in a yeshiva where there is an unlocked wifi signal which is broadcast into the dorm. I know for a fact that there are guys that are and do watch porn to extreme levels. The problem is that the owner of the wifi doesn't seem to be willing to lock his wifi. Anyone have any ideas. There may be no other ways to stop this, but maybe someone has some way. Thank you very much.

=====

=====

Re: Save hundreds of Neshamos

Posted by Maccabee - 25 Jan 2011 17:07

ZemirosShabbos wrote on 25 Jan 2011 16:09:

just thinking aloud

=====

=====

Re: Save hundreds of Neshamos

Posted by Hundreds of Neshamas - 25 Jan 2011 17:09

Problem is that this yeshiva is beis medrash only, and do to this fact the RY and Mashgiach are not so much on top of the guys. There is noone who goes through the bachhurims rooms that can check to see if they would be following this new rule. Therefor, making such a rule will just become a joke. Therein lies the problem.

Kedusha and me3, you are both right on target!

=====

====

Re: Save hundreds of Neshamos
Posted by Maccabee - 25 Jan 2011 17:54

I'm with you, I'm just wondering if the same thing is happening in my dorm. I'm not as in touch. I

=====

====

Re: Save hundreds of Neshamos
Posted by the.guard - 25 Jan 2011 19:26

The problem is not the unrestricted wifi. The problem is the devices that pick it up.

=====

====

guess part of the isolation thing

Re: Save hundreds of Neshamos
Posted by KiviYVY - 25 Jan 2011 19:44

Hundreds of Neshamas,

Would you consider writing an anonymous open letter to <http://www.theyeshivaworld.com/> ? I bet that would get the attention of your Yeshiva administration and many other Yeshivos too. You don't need to mention your Yeshiva's name, nor do I think you should. Let every Yeshiva think it's them and take precautions.

These are problems that need to be addressed, both by having the neighbors block their wifi and having the Yeshiva use their influence (with whatever method they find effective) to stop the Bochorim from accessing the wifi through their devices.

YVY

=====

Re: Save hundreds of Neshamos
Posted by im not alone - 25 Jan 2011 19:46

try the other way around explain for the rosh yeshivah how severe the problem is so he should restrict "to the highest extent" all wifi enabled devices

=====

Re: Save hundreds of Neshamos
Posted by pinokio - 26 Jan 2011 17:00

I'd like to do teshuva for something, i gave the first post in this thread to respond, and i admit i resonded with way too much anger. its something i'll fix. justifying it is useless, nonethe less fyi the whole way i got into lust addiction and all its ensuing terrible sad things, was because someone outside shul on shabbos morning told me about mbat*ng and lust;14 years later and the rest was history.

ASHAMNU...KU'ASNU YOSER MIDAI...

=====

Re: Save hundreds of Neshamos
Posted by the.guard - 28 Jan 2011 10:33

tzaddik90 wrote on 26 Jan 2011 17:00:

I'd like to do teshuva for something, i gave the first post in this thread to respond, and i admit i resonded with way too much anger. its something i'll fix. justifying it is useless, nonethe less fyi the whole way i got into lust addiction and all its ensuing terrible sad things, was because someone outside shul on shabbos morning told me about mbat*ng and lust;14 years later and the rest was history.

ASHAMNU...KU'ASNU YOSER MIDAI...

We have to realize... our lust addiction is not because of x,y, or z... it is because Hashem wanted us to deal with this particular nisayon for the tikkun of our soul. This is our journey. This is how we will one day get closer to Him than we could have ever gotten on a different path.

=====

Re: Save hundreds of Neshamos
Posted by pinokio - 30 Jan 2011 14:40

Thank you Gaurd, i have just posted this idea from r' tzadok on KI nafalti gam kamti, on Ben durdayas thread. Over and out.

=====