

Jekyll & Hyde

Posted by Trouble - 28 Aug 2019 16:08

A dear friend of mine posed a legitimate question to me in the chat section of this wonderful site. As I am a form of a skitzo, and I have multiple identities, profiles and personalities, on the hypothetical miraculous situation that my wife would be intimate with me, would she then become forbidden to me?

allow me to itemize the issues:

Would it make a difference if I could pinpoint just which side of me was active during that sexual moment (in the singular, as I could never hope that it would be extended time)?

What would happen if both sides were active simultaneously? Would that constitute an orgy?

If the moment was forced (strongly encouraged, which might be legal according to the Kings on this site), would that play a role (shut up you perverts)?

Can one part of me warn the other?

Is it even seclusion?

How dark must we make the room?

What an idiot I am! My wife is a frummie and she is simply being machmir on all these questions. And here I was blaming her for all these years. Poor girl.

For a later discussion: what happens if the wife has multiple personalities? Where is Dr Bleich when you really need him?

Does dr.bleach deal with multiple personalities?

is dr. Bleich a rov/rabbi?

Is dr.bleach a rabbi dr.?

is a rabbi dr.considered multiple peronalities?

If yes,can rabbi dr bliech treat himself?

Personally, this first discussion always intrigues me. So I will take a stab at it. As a matter of fact, I discourage it. There are, however, those on this site who do encourage encouragin', or insistin' insistence, or cajolin' cajolement. You get my point. They basically say that the husband should ~~demand enforce~~ plead for his right.

Regardin' your second point, good point. But that would be if the wife has a dual identity. The questions are endless. The rabbis would need to put great effort into this, ~~some thin' my wife (& perhaps trouble's) is/are not willin'...~~
