8) I'm struggling with a Nehgeeyah problem, MAJOR! Anyway after an episode with an employee from our office my wife DEMANDED that I work from the house and not return to the office. Naturally I came up with many excuses as to why it was imperative for me to come to the office (management, security, etc.) as it turns out we are looking for new office space and when we found a space we liked days had gone by before the landlord returned my call. When I finally realized I should avoid staying in the office and agreed with my wife, ten minutes later the phone rang, it was the lanlord of the new space, He will rent to us!
