I just came across something really cool. On daf 4a of brachos, I found something very cool. dovid says how he judged the most complicated cases and when he asked his rebbi mefiboshet if he ruled correctly, the Answer was always no! I asked if the answer was always no, why didn't dovid give up?why didn't he give the responsibility to someone else? Didn't he always fail? Maybe we can say that despite his constant failure, dovid knew he could and needed to try again. No matter what. Pick yourself up and on to tell next one. Dovid was the king, he had to give a psak, his responsibility was huge. So too by us. Our responsibility is to bring Hashem into this world and let it be known. After a while people notice that the person who acted a bit weird is finally looking good. He become a role model. Why? Because he didn't let anything get in his way. He kept on running full speed ahead.
