Ben Durdayah's post means this:

Bezh"i I will try to go there more often.

One of the difficulties is the hours, because I am here in Eretz Yisroel and most of the Yiddish speakers are beyond the sea

But you are correct, after all

We needed gains a bust

But now lay I sleep

Good night, dear brother

And Keep on Trucking

i would also like to ask all of our members here, that know Yiddish, please sign up on the Yiddish forum and post there as well. I know that it might be very difficult for some of you. But, please understand that there are many Yiddish speaking only yiden that need the help and they can't get it on the English forum. I think its a Chov Kudesh to help out there. Thank you.

maybe it's would be a great opportunity to learn Yiddish now.
I'm trying to let this go considering it's Erev Tisha B'av, but the title of this thread really irks me.

If you are chassidish enough not to look in a mirror, then are you chassidish enough not to look at naked shiksas?

Is it this that irks you?

Click on that link, it is discussed in that thread....

i discussed this topic with a mashpia

he said avvadeh the choosid was taught tme and again not to look at shmuts

this stuck and this din't stick also the mirror has very little YH

compared to the NS
