

Hi everyone, looking for a filter

Posted by Common Source - 20 Dec 2011 23:25

hi everyone. I just joined here because I was looking for a specific internet filter and am having trouble finding it.

I would like a filter that will block out pictures on whatever website I tell it to. For example I may want to read the news on a website but there are pictures there I shouldn't see.

Does such a thing exist and if so which one?

Thanks and freyliche Chanuka

=====
=====

Re: Hi everyone, looking for a filter

Posted by Pure yid - 21 Dec 2011 07:26

It is har to find customized filters but k9 works fine. They have on the main page something called tools and if you click on it it will give you the option of finding filters for your needs.

=====
=====

Re: Hi everyone, looking for a filter

Posted by gibbor120 - 21 Dec 2011 15:06

There is also some sort of toggle button you can download to hide/unhide images. I'm sure someone will chime in with what it is. It has been mentioned here before.

=====
=====

Re: Hi everyone, looking for a filter

Posted by Gevura Shebyesod - 21 Dec 2011 15:14

Have a look at this thread. The last few posts have a bunch of links to different filters.

www.guardyoureyes.org/forum/index.php?topic=3083.0

Hatzlacha and a Lechtige Chanuka!!

Gevura!

=====

=====

Re: Hi everyone, looking for a filter

Posted by Common Source - 02 Jan 2012 00:06

Thanks everyone, some of these seem like they might do what I would like.

=====

=====