You can edit your own posts and remove any potentially identifying information.

And maybe change your screen name. <Ducking and running from Dov :o ;D >

I and any of the admins can delete this topic. But can you PM me and explain whats going on - for these posts are actually not your property or mine any more. Once we post, they are actually here for the klal. If what is written is actually a danger to you in any way, then for sure I or any admin will detelt those posts immediately.

But if not, then lets at least talk about it before taking permanent action that could remove help from the tzibur. Something that you or someone esle here wrote to you, may save the life or someone else who is reading it. It's actually not all about you - not is it all about me...get me Benzi?

I'll PM this to you, too...and let me know what to do please.

oy oyb it can be deleted...i am appologizing from everybody who lost his precious time by deleting his posts..... reb Dov...the problem is

And protect your anonymity in your yeshivah!
.. i am pretty sure some of my friends know this nik. (that its me) if you delete it (what i hope) please entschuldigt for the time you wrote it... anyways it helped me alot.

All you need to do is delete your account - I can do that for you - and all your posts and ours will remain - but the posts you ever posted will all appear under the name "Guest". That will solve your entire problem, no? You can open up a new account and start fresh then....OK?
