

for thinkers

Posted by mr.clean - 13 Jan 2014 08:41

---

So Ive heard many a time that as a an addict we tend to think to much and maybe its our nature as addicts, I don't know, anybody else hear that?

=====

=====

Re: for thinkers

Posted by Tosfos - 13 Jan 2014 20:22

---

) that the idea that addicts "think too much" has merit... after all, it is a common refrain around here that each one of us must "get outside of himself" (I think I just read a post about 5 minutes ago from Pidaini on another thread, where he said exactly that)... to me, those two concepts are almost one and the same.

Have a good day.

=====

=====

Re: for thinkers

Posted by gibbor120 - 13 Jan 2014 21:55

---

I think (uh oh

=====

=====

Re: for thinkers

Posted by tryingtoshteig - 13 Jan 2014 22:11

---

That's an interesting question. I will think about it and get back to you...

=====

=====

Re: for thinkers

Posted by kilochalu - 14 Jan 2014 06:51

---

Tosfos wrote:

) that the idea that addicts "think too much" has merit... after all, it is a common refrain around here that each one of us must "get outside of himself" (I think I just read a post about 5 minutes ago from Pidaini on another thread, where he said exactly that)... to me, those two concepts are almost one and the same.

Have a good day.

=====

I think (uh oh

=====

Re: for thinkers

Posted by Gevura Shebyesod - 14 Jan 2014 07:34

---

I think, therefore I am confused.

=====

=====

i think its two dinim

think about it

---