

Hello I'm new here

Posted by yishmoreininow - 09 Apr 2014 18:28

Hi all. I didn't think I would need this forum but since I went back on Facebook for business it's been tough. I am deliberating if HaShem jut is testing me to see if I'm gonna stay on FB and having to keep dodging the shmutz and un friending anyone who posts such things or will I just deactivate my account? It's a tough decision because I'm part of a group that helps my business. Any thoughts?

Thanks

YEN

=====

Re: Hello I'm new here

Posted by yishmoreininow - 11 Apr 2014 22:06

wow u really hit it on the nail. Anytime a woman talks with a sing song I view it as a come on

=====

Re: Hello I'm new here

Posted by AlexEliezer - 14 Apr 2014 22:04

It took me a long time to realize that when a woman is being friendly, or even a little seductive, it doesn't mean she wants me. Women are by nature friendly and a little seductive. Like I said, it's my mind that turns it into a whole mutual lust that is really one-sided: I'm lusting for her, and she's being herself.

To answer your question, I don't think we can change this way of thinking by itself. Rather, it must be the natural outgrowth of a new attitude towards lust and towards women. An attitude in which we realize that lust is poison to us and therefore must be avoided, a habit of not looking at women and limiting our interactions with them to the best of our ability, and beginning to view women as people and not lust objects.

How to do all this? Daven! And do take it one episode at a time.

=====
=====

Re: Hello I'm new here

Posted by yishmoreininow - 17 Apr 2014 21:44

I agree that they're people but I also see them as objects, I think.

=====
=====