I'm just joining gye forums now although I should have a long time ago. I'm an addict (I have finally admitted that reality) for many years, and have tried stopping soooo many times. I'm clean now 2 weeks and with the help of Hashem and gye and all my new found friends on this forum I'm going to keep going and hopefully be who I truly could be. and be an honest unselfish husband and father. I always appreciate getting Chizuk from other people on this forum and hopefully together we can overcome this great challenge. I really feel a deep connection to everyone that is going through this same Rollercoaster that I am going through even though I may not know you I feel a deep connection. So perhaps I will not only take Chizuk from these forums but maybe I can give something also (although let's face it an addict is selfish! He's constantly focused on himself).

Lchaim, brothers.

great first step ted. keep on posting, we want to hear from you.

you are absolutely correct, addicts are incredibly selfish, we have consistently messed ourselves up due to our selfishness. yet we are too selfish to seek help, great job starting to break away from yourself and accepting some hard truths.

Hi Ted,

Welcome to the club.

What made you join at this point? Was there some cataclysmic experience shook you up?

Someone not knowingly made me realize that as a porn addict it's not just a practical problem but there is emotional issues that need to be dealt with and an addict doesn't make a good husband or a good father. Which sounds obvious but then I started realizing how it's true and I'm not actually a good husband like I thought I was and I am not being fair on an emotional level to my wife. We can go on about for a long time. but the point is if we were honest we realize that we were hurting our spouses

Shalom aleichem, Ted!

By sharing on this great forum, when we take, we're also giving.

Wishing you hatzlacha on your journey,

Your selfish friend

Welcome Ted, glad to have you on board!

Being sober and in recovery from this addiction will allow you to be the giving husband and father you want to be.

What have you been doing differently these past 2 weeks to keep clean?

Welcome,

and like AE said: What you gonna do different this time around?

Especially with that new realization.

We lookin' forward to you stickin' around as we plow thru this mess together.

What is triggerin' it?

Are you nervous or tense in nature?

What other things are goin' on in your life?

It sounds like this is the classical case of usin' actin' out for a release of some sort.

Let us know

When you say "clean" do you mean that you're not looking at women and not fantasizing and viewing mental images -- or do you mean you are lusting and just not doing the final release?

WELCOME Ted! It's nice to have you with us. Take a look at the "dov quotes" thread (I have a link in my signature). One of his first posts is called Nuclear Reset Button. He's got a lot of other good ones too.

Keep posting!

AE you have a good point. The problem always starts with the first drink or in my case the first lust. Because once we start lusting we trigger the allergy and then we always fall (I have been listening to the big book with charlie and Joe it's really great. You can find the link on gye) Im finding that the shmiras ainayim is hard but controlling my thoughts and fantasies is much harder. Not to lust in my mind which is obviously a trigger is extremely difficult, my mind is always racing and always wandering.

any tips? Tia.
