I don't know if this is the case by you, but sometimes people put all their focus on not looking at porn or masturbating for 90 days, but in the meantime they are feeding the lust by letting their eyes take in the sights on the street, or by letting fantasies into their minds. When the lust is being fed, it is very difficult to stay clean very long, because the lust grows until we feel strongly compelled to do the other stuff too.

Skep just summed it up for me. I can so relate to that. The act we are trying to avoid is started many steps ahead of when it physically takes place.
