

Poll: What was your Primary Source of Recovery?

Posted by cordnoy - 22 Nov 2015 02:44

There has been lots of chatter in various groups regardin' methods of recovery that truly work.

I would like to see the results of this (somewhat crude) poll; perhaps it might be beneficial for people.

Now, for the sake of this poll, let us say that "recovery" means over 100 days clean/sober by any definition.

Perhaps some would argue that this is not a true barometer, for that is not yet recovery.

True, but.....for the sake of this poll, we will do it this way.

A bit of explanation of the choices:

1. GYE - you never went to SA (and ya' never know; perhaps this can be used as a GYE ad).
2. SA - although you were on GYE and made headway, your recovery was based on the meetin's and sponsors.
3. Live People - perhaps you were on GYE and maybe you frequented SA, but it was the interaction with real/live people with known first names and last names that tipped you over the edge.
4. Other - please explain; was it a combo effect? Was it the readin' of the books? Was it mussar?

This is not scientific and perhaps will need to be redone.

The Dr. did somethin' similar recently, so perhaps he can add to this as well.

Thank you

b'hatzlachah

Opening up GYE to "Klal Yisrael"?

At the "stylistic" level, this means the GYE forum very often uses a Frum, predominantly "Yeshivish," and I dare say also an "American Eshkenazi," style of language.

Thank you, @cordnoy, for understanding me.

BTW: maybe this is an appropriate place to raise my thoughts regarding the above stylistic issue.

Of course, it is perfectly understandable (and I guess also expected) that such a religious-based site, started and backed by Frum Jews, should take on such a "Frum" style and atmosphere. I not really suggesting otherwise on a practical level!

But nevertheless, I'm kinda "thinking out loud" now: IMHO, in a certain sense, it is quite unfortunate that this site projects such an exclusively Frum and Yeshivish look-and-feel to it, which most certainly makes it appear "out-of-bounds" to the majority of Klal Yisrael, who have sadly not yet fully-joined us in committing to a full life of Torah and Mitzvot.

If we see that significant number of secular Bnei Noach have begun "seeing the light," then surely many, many, of our fellow brothers and sisters inside Am Yisrael -- even if they might still define themselves as secular (or "Conservative" or "Reform" or whatever) -- have similarly decided that they need to seek recovery from this curse! So, wouldn't it be nice if, somehow, at least part of GYE could appeal to them as well? And perhaps, via this initial, limited, contact with the world of Kdusha, they could start discovering opportunities to sanctifying other aspects of their personal lives as well.

What do you think?

They can if they want to. There is a member of GYE who is not jewish and he posts every day. There is also a very big mailah of having an identity and even exclusivity to an extent. GYE is very good at promoting comfort to those who want to seek it out. While I don't speak for GYE, I assume that the people who run GYE are frum jews who have most experience dealing with frum jews. GYE was started to address an issue that may be worldwide, but it was specifically for the frum community because of stigma and shame and whatnot.

I would add that there are plenty of less-committed Jews on this site too, it really doesn't matter

And there is also a Yiddish site that has a more Chassidish flavor to it, a Hebrew site for Israelis, as well as French and Spanish.

Yesodi,

IMHO in low level addiction to Porn and Mast like myself, if we take Gd out of the equation I'd never have looked to change my life, which is why there's more religious guys here than elsewhere

Acc to my little research the non jewish / irreligious world, Masturbation isn't condoned at all

A religious life with Hashem has granted me a better physical life, but I only came here bc of Hashem

Totally separate sites for different languages

Yes, and that raises another question/comment that I had:

IMHO, it's unfortunate that all these sites are "totally separate."

I for example, have a separate login for this English site and for the Hebrew site. (So far, I've only been writing here, because I can type much faster in English, but I still like to read the stuff in Hebrew.) With the way things are now, I need to update my counter separately on both sites, which is a hassle.

Is there a technological limitation with the Kunena platform that caused this situation?

I agree with this sentiment.

Perhaps there is a reason though.

No, Not yet. Nor do I remember what I meant when I wrote that post. Currently I don't know or care if I will recover, the importantly thing is that I get through today (gosh! I'm starting to sound like cords now). Things that have helped me have been, gye - mostly the forum, and the real live people it has introduced me to.

I'm ok with the way I sound now, but I'll admit, that when I first came to gye, I found all of the "I don't care - only today" thingy to be a little obsessive.

Me too, and to be honest I thought it was fine up to a point, but when taken too far becomes counter-productive.

Then one day one post hit me and it started to make sense. It's good to plan long term, but the only way to actually get anywhere is by focusing on today only.
