

Starting anew. again.

Posted by shmiraashachaim - 08 Feb 2016 19:28

Hi everyone. I have introduced myself in the past but I decided to open a new account because I haven't been on top of my GYE game and after falling a couple times after a long streak I decided to start afresh. No point explaining more so I'll get down to what I have been going through: I go by Chaim and I'm 23. I started a rollercoaster of depravity and teshuvah about four years ago which began with lusting and masturbating, and progressed to pornography. During this period I dealt with being diagnosed with OCD, ADD and depression, and my mother passing away. As is common with addicts, my image completely clashed with my activities and thoughts. I was viewed as a masmid, bal medos, tzadik, etc. but I had this storm going on inside me going on without anyone noticing it besides poor lonely me. True, I might of lacked self-esteem and overly cared about what people thought about me and feigned who I was somewhat, but I didn't view myself as a complete fake because I did care about growing and coming close to Hashem. Instead I saw myself as a very confused and depressed person. With a few therapists under my belt and signing up on GYE, I have been working on myself by attaining a better understating of my addiction and attempting to address my diagnoses and circumstances which are interrelated with each other and my addiction. B"H, I have gained clarity through GYE in the nature of my addiction and the means of going about it. I was able to stay clean for a month and a half and I felt it was time to start dating. I felt clear headed going out with my first date. I haven't done more than having the occasional fleeting sexual thoughts in a while and as far as I can tell I didn't view her as a sex object. I didn't fantasize about her and I'm pretty sure I was evaluating it with my usual methodical and even OCD thinking and I really truly believe it's a neis that I am engaged to her. She is sweet, pure, and has a very similar outlook and goals that I do. I was clean for a while but I was still working on a TaPHSIC shvuah. I was able to think it through and write it down, but I acted out before I actually said it. I acted out once after that by paying my "small" kinas. I am so scared. What has gotten into me? I need to prepare for marriage and not hurt this girl whom I committed to take care of in a loving and healthy way. Please Hashem help me on this never ending journey!!

=====

=====

Re: Starting anew. again.

Posted by realsimcha - 24 May 2016 04:56

Workingguy wrote on 24 May 2016 01:13:

shmiraashachaim wrote on 24 May 2016 01:01:

realsimcha wrote:

I think if your Rebbi can be trusted then that is a great first step. I would imagine that if he didn't feel qualified to answer that he would work with you to find the right person to ask.

makes sense. Think this telling my Rebbi thing might be an idea. But want to really crystallize the perhaps obvious to many folks around her: why tell? Is there benefit besides advice? Answers or guidance to previous posts would be great. Thanks

Telling takes away the hiding. Keeping a secret that you're terrified to tell someone is unhealthy, and often adds shame, which causes people to want to act out, which makes the secret bigger, which causes more shame, which.....you get the picture.

When you live a double life you often feel like a hypocrite. Coming clean can be great for recovery as well.

I learned the hard way that it gets harder as time passes. I wish I would have disclosed more when I was younger.

=====

Re: Starting anew. again.
Posted by shmiraashachaim - 25 May 2016 04:25

realsimcha wrote:

Workingguy wrote:

shmiraashachaim wrote:

realsimcha wrote:

I think if your Rebbi can be trusted then that is a great first step. I would imagine that if he didn't feel qualified to answer that he would work with you to find the right person to ask.

makes sense. Think this telling my Rebbi thing might be an idea. But want to really crystallize the perhaps obvious to many folks around her: why tell? Is there benefit besides advice? Answers or guidance to previous posts would be great. Thanks

Telling takes away the hiding. Keeping a secret that you're terrified to tell someone is unhealthy, and often adds shame, which causes people to want to act out, which makes the secret bigger, which causes more shame, which.....you get the picture.

When you live a double life you often feel like a hypocrite. Coming clean can be great for recovery as well.

I learned the hard way that it gets harder as time passes. I wish I would have disclosed more when I was younger.

I hear what you both are saying and it seems as you are gearing more forwards the wife more then the Rabbi. I'm starting to see the distinction between the two as I have been reading some of the links Markz was kind enough to share. Haven't finished and still not clear on the subject, but it seems at least so far that basically the main consensise it not to share unless far down the path of sobriety. RS, I feel you are empathetic with me that I can't stand the fact that my wife hasn't stressed on anything more than she doesn't like secrets. But seems more complicated than that and I guess I have to first see if I want to push myself into telling my Rebbe. What are thoughts

=====

Re: Starting anew. again.

Posted by realsimcha - 25 May 2016 12:26

Just to clarify: I think you should not say anything to your wife without hadracha.

=====

=====

Re: Starting anew. again.

Posted by shmirashachaim - 26 May 2016 04:41

A lot of emotions thrown around today for many different reasons. Stress. Frustration Sadness. But here I am with tears on my face, thankful for everything I have. Thankful to be healthy. Thankful I have an amazing wife. Thankful that I was sober today. Sadness can be looked at as a bad thing, but I think it's ok to be sad once in a while. Its a real feeling that comes with life, unlike the fake feelings that come with porn. I am grateful that at least for now I can live life and everything that comes with it.

=====

=====

Re: Starting anew. again.

Posted by shmirashachaim - 27 May 2016 04:18

Another rough day. Got through it pretty much exhausted and unable to complete what was needed to be done. In bed feeling pretty low. I have been working on the one day at a time thing which helped me for everything on top of how it's used on GYE. I use it to take away all my stress that am accustomed to have. I simply give it over to Hashem and focus instead on the present. As my day I gone with little done, I see that I failed to even do the present. And now I realize that perhaps hat is true. Perhaps I don't have control on the present as much as the past or future. I can just do what I can.

This ODAAT thing has really been helping me. Thanks to whoever was michadesh it.

=====

=====

Re: Starting anew. again.

Posted by shmirashachaim - 27 May 2016 22:50

Life is full B'H. With good things. It's just hard to get recovery steps inside of it all. Will have to work on that. Friday hectic like usual but i will keep doing this one step at a time. Will try to focus on doing more than its hard to do.

One thing that will hopefully work out is a partnership. Been taking to someone last week here and there, and hopefully he'll read this. Last time I spoke to him was only for a few minutes and the one thing he wanted to get out was that he doesn't want to stop. I have why to say on the matter but I'm afraid I'm too new at this to be confident on what I feel on the matter. Also know that I have felt similar feelings in the past and don't want that to come up again. What do guys have to say to someone who insistes that he doesn't want to stop but yet is on the forum and talking to me?

=====
=====

Re: Starting anew. again.
Posted by shmirashachaim - 27 May 2016 22:51

Oh and forgot to wish everyone a healthy sober shabbas

=====
=====

Re: Starting anew. again.
Posted by Yesod - 28 May 2016 00:22

I don't know, but if he dont wanna stop and you are stuck looking for a partnership, lemme know.

But i figure he wants to, cuz why else would he be here. .. it's fun here but there is "funner"

=====
=====

Re: Starting anew. again.
Posted by realsimcha - 29 May 2016 02:43

If a person really really doesn't want to stop and is here just because of some nagging guilty feelings...I don't know if there really is anything to do. Maybe you just need to encourage him to keep in touch and hope that when that moment comes he has the support that he needs...

=====
=====

Re: Starting anew. again.
Posted by shmirashachaim - 30 May 2016 02:59

Thanks RS and Yesod.. Will keep those in mind.

But I remember all too well those periods that I didn't want to stop. I did it enough times to make me think that is who I am. That is who I want to be. My fantasizing took me over so much that I lost touch with myself completely. Did I feel empty? Yes. Did I actually believe that I am ready to throw my life away and pursue a new life of tivah? Probably not. However, I probably would of debated the latter one then and at least at that time- in my warped and confused mind I would of went full steam ahead with filling the emptiness with other stuff. Don't want to dwell in those times too much- they were bad. Real bad. I just have to accept them as part of my history, and fear and hope I will never go back there again. Rock bottom is painful.

Just curious how to address this confusing issue and reconcile how I can or (anyone else?) have such a drastic and different view.

I assume that concept of aveiras dulling the guilt, permitting it, and then "biting Talmid Cacham" thing comes into play.

I spoke to him again today and he said that he wanted to change but doesn't want the pain about going about it and is nervous what will come about in the process (or something like that) this I think is easier to address, but got me thinking about the first concept.

But despite my small opinion on these things, would be nice to get some feedback as I don't trust myself that I will never go back to these feelings. Do I think I will? Of course not! But learning from my past can't be too confident on anything

=====

====

Re: Starting anew. again.

Posted by shmirashachaim - 31 May 2016 02:50

Been doing OK. B'H. I've been having these slight pressures through out the day that eerily reminded me of not such good times, but I'm not going to freak out about it. Am I supposed to try to figure out why I am having these feelings? Or ignore them move on, and just concentrate on what I'm supposed to be doing? I'm embarrassed to say that this morning a old trigger of thinking could get past restrictions on phone came up and the exciting feeling was there. For less than a minute. But was there. Not going to freak out.. Think I learn already that freaking out isn't a good thing.

=====

====

Re: Starting anew. again.

Posted by markz - 31 May 2016 02:57

A therapist can help understand why

Someone unprofessional may just get stuck on the highway obsessing

From what I heard, the 12 steps can help.. alot

=====
=====

Re: Starting anew. again.

Posted by inastruggle - 31 May 2016 03:04

Remember that it isn;t your job to make him stop. He'll only stop once he decides to. You can keep encouraging him of course, but don't feel bad if he leaves, it isn't i your hands.

It sounds like he may need a real dose of ODAAT. Ask him to just stop today, what happens tomorrow will happen tomorrow, try it for one day.

I'll daven for this to work out.

=====
=====

Re: Starting anew. again.

Posted by shmishachaim - 31 May 2016 03:46

markz wrote:

A therapist can help understand why

Someone unprofessional may just get stuck on the highway obsessing

From what I heard, the 12 steps can help.. alot

I see from your response that I shouldnt just move on. But shouldn't focus on it either unless I have a therapist. I must put aside the therapist rout for several reasons but will keep that rout open I guess. So since leaving the therapist rout aside for now, I decided to go with your first thing o got out of your response and ignore the second. I thought about it, and came up with that think the pressure wasn't from ant particular event. I would originally would of said simply because I need excitement- and sitting in a chair all day learning/studying doesn't cut it. But I actually had a quite nice and different day today, so it could either be that even so I have this insatiable need for excitement or its just the nagging feeling of the addiction brewing inside me. Or both. Or neither. K. So assuming it's these things, would like to know how to address them. I have mentioned a while back my excitement thing. Then it was about transferring the excitement of porn to the excitement of beefing porn which isn't healthy as excitement of anything doesn't really last. As Ina so eloquently said, I can't make recovery the goal. The goal is life and this is just a means to get there. fine. I got that. But doesn't tame this restless feeling. This probably needs some introspection and perhaps therapy. In regards to the addiction brewing inside me, that sounds really scary and would prefer not to even thing about what that would entail. Any thoughts on this obsessing of mine?

In regards to the 12 steps. I am an am haarerz and haven't had the time to read it. So saying so, I don't see the relevance to my issue

=====
=====