Welcome Mr Me. Or Mr Newme? Wishing you ????? on overcoming the struggle that you're up against. Have you come up with a plan on how to protect yourself from triggers? If you feel comfortable with it, please share some more about what you're going through.

Welcome

Very good for coming here and also for opeing up to your wife. Do you want to give us some more history as to what you struggle with and what you are doing about it now and what you plan to do? as bb0212 wrote

Its work for life on this, it does get easier but its there, but its all worth it as the gains on this world as well as the next are million times greater than the effort you invest.

On many occassions when I tried to stop I was very much so watching my eyes and thoughts. For an addict it won't help. Do you use the word colloquially, like "I'm addicted to pringles?" Or is it the real thing? Also, congrats on opening up with the wife, but some say that's dangerous and could be selfish if it's just to her. You have a rabbi or therapist you could open up to, too, who would better be able to guide you?
