

Climbing the narrow switchback road
Posted by NaharDinur - 03 Oct 2017 05:49

Hi,

I'm on journey that started when I was 12.

I've been on going mostly downhill for the past 32 years.

196 days ago Hashem showed me the way up by granting me the courage to admit my addiction to a marriage counselor and quite acting out.

103 days ago Hashem gave me the gift of sobriety from my most of my habits of active lust.

I still have a long narrow treacherous road ahead of me, battling multiple addictions, bad habits and life's usual challenges.

That's why I'm here, looking for "strength in numbers", seeking help from others who are fighting the good fight.

=====
=====

Re: Climbing the narrow switchback road
Posted by Markz - 03 Oct 2017 12:48

NaharDinur wrote on 03 Oct 2017 05:49:

Hi,

I'm on journey that started when I was 12.

I've been on going mostly downhill for the past 32 years.

196 days ago Hashem showed me the way up by granting me the courage to admit my addiction to a marriage counselor and quite acting out.

103 days ago Hashem gave me the gift of sobriety from my most of my habits of active lust.

I still have a long narrow treacherous road ahead of me, battling multiple addictions, bad habits and life's usual challenges.

That's why I'm here, looking for "strength in numbers", seeking help from others who are fighting the good fight.

Welcome brother

Great to hear you're doing well

Whats running your sobriety engine if I may ask

=====
=====

Re: Climbing the narrow switchback road
Posted by gibbor120 - 03 Oct 2017 15:42

Welcome! I wish you much hatzlacha! Keep posting.

=====
=====