

my struggle

Posted by richi1 - 20 Nov 2017 23:12

hello there my story is as follows i from teen age have had a drive for women i always fought to watch my eyes this was hard tho due that my school was in the city i had to take subway everyday etc. so it was nearly impossible no matter how hard i tried i almost always failed! when i left to study out of town i found it more relaxing for i wasnt exposed to so much but i never worked on the problem to the core so i still had the urge to look at inappropriate things when could then when came back from out of town thats where the steep fall began i started surfing the web and the innapropriate level grew until one time i had a seminal discharge i was so upset and scared!! from then on i took myself into my own hands and started to work on myself but the urge just kept coming and i always found myself surfing web and sites.....

Welcome. Keep posting and staying connected. This site and the people here have alot to offer. Many have successfully dealt with the challenges you describe. On your next post, maybe share your approximate age.
