

loss of my mother
Posted by drust - 11 Jul 2020 12:44

Dear Friends

I lost my mother today. I fell I have a big volume of void in my soul.

I have no friend to talk with. so I prefer to write it here.

I'm crying now. I'm very sad.

my mother was the greatest person that i've known. tell me what i should do...

tell me my friends...

thats heartbreaking...

i cant imagine your pain,

just because she is no longer with you doesnt mean you cant do things for her, any thing spiritual you do benefit her up there. so the best thing for her would to keep strong in change
and she will continue to get nachas

????? ???? ???? ?

There are no words to comfort you. The pain must be immeasurable. But just know that we sympathize and empathize and are here if you need to talk. "Hamakom yinachem eschem bisoch shiar aveilei tzion viyrushalayim". May you only know happiness.

In the hakdama to darash moshe reb moshe writes that klal yisroel has big consolation when a great person passes away, because it shows they were human, and therefore leaves us feeling uplifted that we can do the same

My condolences.

The shiva period can be very intense and tiring.

Emotions fly around.

If you need to take time out, go for a walk, or log onto here.
