

Make it to Yeshiva

Posted by YeshivaGuy - 04 Aug 2020 05:33

---

Hi everyone,

First I want to say that I am humbled and honored to be in the presence of such Giborei Koach, true warriors of Hakadosh Baruch Hu.

I bh am not addicted to pornography.

I haven't been on a porn website.

But I'm getting close, and I'm here to gain chizuk not to fall into it.

Once I return to Yeshiva I'm safe, but as long as I'm home I'm in danger, and bh I haven't fallen into pornography. However it's the next step, chalila.

I bh am running a camp, so I started keeping busy, so bh have only been nichshal once in the last 3 weeks.

i want to just express my gratitude to all of you, and my great admiration for each and every one of you.

My Yetzer tries telling me "comon, porn can't be that bad, it's just the word that sounds scary" or like "it can't be so different than YouTube videos"

So I'm here to gain that chizuk.

thank you!

=====
=====

Re: Make it to Yeshiva

Posted by Vehkam - 30 Aug 2022 03:26

---

there is nothing wrong with feeling disappointed (hopefully not for too long.) but in my opinion as stated above there is no reason to feel shame even for a second. There simply is no shame in doing the right thing. Ask yourself, is this the best path right now for my emotional and spiritual health? if the answer is yes, then embrace the fact that you are doing ratzon hashem and that hashem will provide you with the perfect shidduch for you.

There was a podcast on coach menachem with rabbi binyomin weinreb a few months ago where he discussed transitioning out of yeshiva, you might find it helpful.

edit: i just listened to the beginning and R' Weinreb's opening remarks should be very helpful. he also recommends R Aaron Lopiansky's book "ben torah for life"

(you might also want to rethink how you judge others that don't stay in yeshiva)

=====
=====

Re: Make it to Yeshiva

Posted by Mesayin - 30 Aug 2022 14:34

---

Hey Yeshiva guy.

I have had a similar experience, I left Yeshiva at 20 (and my home) and went to work (Mostly because I had left my parents and needed to support myself).

A good way to look at it is that you know you did the right thing because you were directed by people you trust. Also, the alternative (i.e staying in Yeshiva) is a whole lot more shameful.

In regards to shidduchim, I agree with you, I'm 28 now and still looking for someone. The best thing you can do is be very open-minded when it comes to the girl's background. Don't shy away from divorcees (even if the have children), or even girls from a different background than you

You should however not give an inch on the girl herself, she should be a strong, healthy, and Ehrlich girl. No compromise there.

You can compromise on her background.

You may want to sign up on Jwed and SawYouAtSinai, I almost got married a couple of times through those sites, there are some solid girls there although you still need to be careful.

Mush Hatzlacha

=====
=====

Re: Make it to Yeshiva

Posted by future paltiel - 30 Aug 2022 14:53

---

There was a podcast on coach menachem with rabbi binyomin weinreb a few months ago where he discussed transitioning out of yeshiva, you might find it helpful.

edit: i just listened to the beginning and R' Weinreb's opening remarks should be very helpful. he also recommends R Aaron Lopiansky's book "ben torah for life"

Thank you for mentioning.

Where can we find this podcast?

=====
=====

Re: Make it to Yeshiva

Posted by future paltiel - 30 Aug 2022 15:04

---

We must remember that Judaism, spirituality and a Torah life are not one-size-fits-all.

Everybody had their path in life. We are accustomed to believe that those who left Kollel after a year could have done better, those who started working when they got married half-bums and the bochurim who started working complete bums. Nothing could be further from the truth.

If we remember a bit of history, The legendary ???? was a school Rebbi, the ???? would sell fabric, the Ohr Hachaim was a well-known tailor and Rav Yitzchak Kaduri, the famous Mekubal used to sell spices. That did not stop them from learning, growing and even marrying women who I am sure were ehrliche ladies.

Even Yaakov Avinu, the representative of Torah in Middas haTiferes, had to work for fourteen years in order to get married (not to the best ben-torah family by the way...).

You can always PM me if you have any questions.

=====
=====

Re: Make it to Yeshiva
Posted by Kavey - 30 Aug 2022 15:16

---

Also staying in learning to find a shidduch (or going to a specific yeshiva for that matter) is just crazy IMO. Feels similar to coffee room kollel guys lo aleinu.

=====
=====

Re: Make it to Yeshiva
Posted by Vehkam - 30 Aug 2022 16:31

---

future paltiel wrote on 30 Aug 2022 14:53:

There was a podcast on coach menachem with rabbi binyomin weinreb a few months ago where he discussed transitioning out of yeshiva, you might find it helpful.

edit: i just listened to the beginning and R' Weinreb's opening remarks should be very helpful. he also recommends R Aaron Lopiansky's book "ben torah for life"

Thank you for mentioning.

Where can we find this podcast

podcasts.apple.com/us/podcast/rabbi-binyomin-weinreb-the-3-keys-to-stay-connected/id1515410160?i=1000560116194

=====
=====

Re: Make it to Yeshiva
Posted by Birshusi - 30 Aug 2022 17:40

---

I want to join the chorus of voices commending you for making a mature decision with proper guidance.

I also want to commiserate with your feelings of shame. This past Sunday was the first time in my life that I didn't go to seder on Rosh Chodesh Elul. I just let myself be sad about it, while also knowing that I am better off doing what I'm doing now than if I was still trying to force myself to be learning full-time.

As a married man I can tell you that the only thing worse than being a burnt out bochur is being a burnt out yungerman.

=====
=====

Re: Make it to Yeshiva

Posted by Looking_to_improve - 30 Aug 2022 21:48

---

YeshivaGuy wrote on 30 Aug 2022 00:42:

Markz wrote on 29 Aug 2022 15:27:

YeshivaGuy wrote on 29 Aug 2022 05:13:

future paltiel wrote on 29 Aug 2022 03:48:

Mazal tov on your new job? First job after Yeshiva? What do you work in?

Thanks.

"After Yeshiva"- painful words for me to swallow.

Following clear eitzah from my rebbeim though. Even drove over 6 hours a few times each this summer to speak to them in person..

I'm starting a shoel umeishiv job in the morning GD willing and will be teaching about 5 classes a day to highschool kids with learning disabilities once school commences.

Got the job without even a degree in it bh. Siyata Dishmaya.

I'm still looking into what I want to do exactly, this is me testing the waters and trying dif things out.

I have a lot of shame for not remaining in Yeshiva full time...

You're doing awesome!

What would be if your entire Yeshiva went out and started an amazing productive life as you are doing now. Would you be ashamed?

In that case, what are you ashamed of, can you spell it out. Sometimes when we express our fears, they somehow disappear

I'm ashamed of not living the life I expected myself to live. Not having the trajectory that I wanted.

I'm ashamed of not being in yeshiva full time.

The reason is because the society I've associated with these last few years sees leaving full time learning especially before even dating as shameful and embarrassing.

Even guys who are bums, not learning they still stay in Yeshiva.

And not just society but even myself.

I myself had felt this same way towards those working before marriage..

I fear that no frum girl will want to date or marry me and that I'll end up marrying a half baked wushu washy girl who's not tzanua.

With my friends the girls they date the questions are "how long does he want to learn for..."

Now I still would like to learn in kollel, and as my rebbium agreed, doing this temporarily in no way precludes me from doing that.

But no regular Bais Yaakov girl would date me if I'm already a "Baal habos."

And you'll ask well am I looking for such a girl?

Idk, I thought I was.

I thought I was looking for a close minded Bais yaakov girl, at least subconsciously.

Why?

Because it looks shtark. It means "you made it" from being modox.

The girl I drove yesterday seemed pretty good though..

????? ??' ?????? 3:11:

????????? ?????????? ????? ?????? ?????????? ?????????????????? ?????????????????? ?????????? ??????????
????????????? ?????????????????? ??????. ?????????? ?????????? ?????????? ?????????????? ?????????????????? ??????????
????????????? ?????????? ?????????????????? (????????? ??? ?) "????????? ?????????????? ?????? ?????????? ??????????????
????????? ??????" (????? ????? ? ?) "????????????????? ?????????????? ?????????? ?????????? ?????? ?????????????? ??????????"
????????????????? ??????:

I think he elaborates in pirkei avos, but unfortunately cannot remember where off the top of my head

=====
=====

Re: Make it to Yeshiva
Posted by Looking_to_improve - 30 Aug 2022 22:01

---

Looking to improve wrote on 30 Aug 2022 21:48:

YeshivaGuy wrote on 30 Aug 2022 00:42:

Markz wrote on 29 Aug 2022 15:27:

YeshivaGuy wrote on 29 Aug 2022 05:13:

future paltiel wrote on 29 Aug 2022 03:48:

Mazal tov on your new job? First job after Yeshiva? What do you work in?

Thanks.

"After Yeshiva"- painful words for me to swallow.

Following clear eitzah from my rebbeim though. Even drove over 6 hours a few times each this summer to speak to them in person..

I'm starting a shoel umeishiv job in the morning GD willing and will be teaching about 5 classes a day to highschool kids with learning disabilities once school commences.

Got the job without even a degree in it bh. Siyata Dishmaya.

I'm still looking into what I want to do exactly, this is me testing the waters and trying dif things out.

I have a lot of shame for not remaining in Yeshiva full time...

You're doing awesome!

What would be if your entire Yeshiva went out and started an amazing productive life as you are doing now. Would you be ashamed?

In that case, what are you ashamed of, can you spell it out. Sometimes when we express our fears, they somehow disappear

I'm ashamed of not living the life I expected myself to live. Not having the trajectory that I wanted.

I'm ashamed of not being in yeshiva full time.

The reason is because the society I've associated with these last few years sees leaving full time learning especially before even dating as shameful and embarrassing.

Even guys who are bums, not learning they still stay in Yeshiva.

And not just society but even myself.

I myself had felt this same way towards those working before marriage..

I fear that no frum girl will want to date or marry me and that I'll end up marrying a half baked wushu washy girl who's not tzanua.

With my friends the girls they date the questions are "how long does he want to learn for..."

Now I still would like to learn in kollel, and as my rebbium agreed, doing this temporarily in no way precludes me from doing that.

But no regular Bais Yaakov girl would date me if I'm already a "Baal habos."

And you'll ask well am I looking for such a girl?

Idk, I thought I was.

I thought I was looking for a close minded Bais yaakov girl, at least subconsciously.

Why?

Because it looks shtark. It means "you made it" from being modox.

The girl I drove yesterday seemed pretty good though..

????? ??' ?????? 3:11:

????????? ?????????? ????? ?????? ?????????? ?????????????????? ?????????????????? ?????????? ??????????
????????????? ?????????????????? ?????? ?????????? ?????????? ?????????? ?????????? ?????????????????? ??????????
????????????? ?????????? ?????????????????? (????????? ??? ?) "????????? ?????????????? ????? ?????????? ??????????????
????????? ??????" (????? ????? ? ?) "????????????????? ?????????????? ?????????? ?????????? ?????? ?????????????? ??????????"
????????????????? ??????:

I think he elaborates in pirkei avos, but unfortunately cannot remember where off the top of my head

Avos 4:5 and also see halocho 10

=====
=====

Re: Make it to Yeshiva
Posted by YeshivaGuy - 31 Aug 2022 05:59

---

Birshusi wrote on 30 Aug 2022 17:40:

I want to join the chorus of voices commending you for making a mature decision with proper guidance.

I also want to commiserate with your feelings of shame. This past Sunday was the first time in my life that I didn't go to seder on Rosh Chodesh Elul. I just let myself be sad about it, while also knowing that I am better off doing what I'm doing now than if I was still trying to force myself to be learning full-time.

As a married man I can tell you that the only thing worse than being a burnt out bochur is being a burnt out yungerman.

Thank you so much, not sure we've met before.

Hatzlocha and be in touch.

=====
=====

Re: Make it to Yeshiva

Posted by YeshivaGuy - 31 Aug 2022 06:02

---

Vehkam wrote on 30 Aug 2022 03:26:

(you might also want to rethink how you judge others that don't stay in yeshiva)

Yes absolutely!

This year and all I've experienced has really opened my eyes and made me way less judgemental. Of others at least

=====
=====

Re: Make it to Yeshiva

Posted by YeshivaGuy - 31 Aug 2022 06:13

---

My first post here was August 4, 2020

That's about 757 days ago.

It says I have 701 cumulative clean days.

Thats pretty solid.

Went to a wedding tonight of a friend.

Was shocked that it was mixed seating etc, as were some friends of mine.

Wasn't the best with shmiras eynayim tbh, but I did refrain from speaking unnecessarily to my friends wife at the table.

I'm proud of that.

I'm hoping this year to be more consistent in these inyanim. Being busy will b'ezras Hashem help.

I hope being Shoel Umeishiv will respark my passion for learning, that I'll once again daven 3 times a day with a minyan (haven't done that in almost a year...)

And hopefully be matzliach in the teaching positions as well.

Additionally I'd like to keep making strides in therapy/my "emotional world."

And I'd like to still lose abit more weight (lost 50 pounds this year bh).

And then it wouldn't be so shver to consider dating...

Have a gn,

YeshivaGuy

=====
=====

Re: Make it to Yeshiva
Posted by qualitystuff - 31 Aug 2022 15:20

---

Hey YG,

Sounds like you are doing great. Tell yourself (in words) the pride you feel of your mind set. Feel the good. Remember these good feelings, you will want to bring back these feelings if CV you are slipping. Focus on the happiness you will have by resisting the urges and pitfalls.

BTW I recall when I was a shoel umeishiv, somehow I was more popular and involved with the bochrin when I was clean and successful. I couldn't understand how but somehow the Bochrin felt when I was tripping, they just didn't have the trust, respect or interest in me. To be there for the bochrin you need to be there for yourself. Hatzlacha. Hashem Yaazor.

=====
=====

Re: Make it to Yeshiva
Posted by Lchaim Tovim - 31 Aug 2022 18:27

---

YeshivaGuy wrote on 31 Aug 2022 06:13:

My first post here was August 4, 2020

That's about 757 days ago.

It says I have 701 cumulative clean days.

That's pretty solid.

That's pretty solid???? I have to disagree with that.

Warning: Spoiler!

=====
=====