

I am new here, I want to share helpful things
Posted by Torahwarrior613 - 01 Dec 2020 00:34

I've heard of this place before but found it by "accident" after I was looking up a sefer called Erech Apayim. First what is troubling me I have to say that I unfortunately have a fb acct, hardly on it much, but I am for a while now starting to decreasing the number of people there it doesn't look like I will be deactivating it any time soon. I know settings have a option that allows to block images, which I want to share here since as you know it will help with it. Of course if you have websites that are Frum can be allowed to show. I also have a extension that blocks stuff its called Block Site, it blocks all types of websites you want to block. Another one is Advanced Profanity Filter. This one swaps any swear words to something that's not a curse. Also, I guess a good start in this is...how can I deal with cases where I have to buy stuff and the cashier, employee there, is not modest. My mom does not know that there is something called Modern Orthodox, or the importance of tznius. I think I might call someone I know who is best for this, give info about it What I meant earlier which I deleted is there's many people here who have the challenge of living in a secular home with him the only one religious; or is a religious household but modern

Hey welcome!

We are all here to help.

What do you mean by that? Do you mean modern?

Maybe you can elaborate on what's going on?

All the best

Welcome! We'd love to help but you need to be more clear. I don't understand your post. Why are you here? Do you want to stop something?
