

Introducing myself

Posted by albertc123 - 02 Mar 2021 16:30

Hello:

I am a first time poster here. I live in a frum community and have been struggling with viewing porn for a long time. In the past 6 months I have limited myself to looking at innapropriate things but have stopped short of real porn. More recently I have stayed away from innapropriate images (for about 10 days) It's been very difficult for me and in my despair I have turned to this website/forum. I hope I can overcome this problem.

Thanks to everybody for the responses. I am wondering about any connection between childhood trauma and this problem of being drawn to inappropriate images and porn.

What do you mean despair? Do you mean you're despairing of ever succeeding? Or despair because it's so hard and you surprised it is so hard? or maybe they are the same.

I've never tried drugs, so can't compare to them, but think of this: along with eating, this is the most difficult drug to control in the world. You are encouraged to have a little, but not too much (putting aside the usual GYE debates, Imaaseh we're supposed to devote our yetzer hora to our wives, but that doesn't mean getting rid of it) which makes it really hard.

Be strong, we've all been there and unless you are an addict (another big GYE topic) you'll have ups and downs, but hopefully in time, mainly ups.
