

I didn't make it.....yet

Hello dear friends

I've not been on for some time and intend to pop in more often now.

let's just say that personal life has been really rocky lately with losing both parents and still dealing with the inheritance and what not all this has not helped me in my struggles.

what am I looking for here I don't know but I remembered my log in and password so I figured I would drop in and see where it goes.....

According to Reb HHM I get a mazal tov so I wanted to share with the fam...

I have now started getting pop up memories of porn scenes that I have not seen for awhile now!!!

Sadly, I get some that are in black and white.

Strangest thing happened to me on Friday

I visited a dark place from my past (not calling it a fall as nothing happened) and ended up sending another jew a yeshivah bochur to someone to get him started on the road to recovery....

Hashem works in mysterious ways....

Been awhile since I've been here. Nothing much has changed with me. Still all the same struggles just not as accesible as they used to be. I feel that I would not be able to stop if the opportunity came to go to my favorite dark places and I constntly think about them. Truth is I feel ashamed and embarresed of myself as my position is one of extreme influence yet I am such a discusting thing with what goes on in my mind. I will not see the responses to this for awhile as I do not know when I will next be able to come back but just wanted to vent and who knows, maybe someone out there that has talked to me before might just see this....

Hi Mayan,

I haven't seen your thread as I've only joined 7 months ago. Although my story isn't as exciting as some old timers here, I think we may be able to mutually benefit each other by connecting and speaking. See a link to my thread in my signature below to get to know me, and feel free to reach out if you'd like to connect!

Ouch. That hurts. Feeling like nothing's changing... you have my empathy, chaver.

I'll echo the sentiments and extend a warm hand... would be happy to get to know you.

I've only been here a year and a half, so I don't qualify as one of the old timers... but, maybe still...

Sorry did not mean to exclude anyone who replied here or privately. Still feel the same as before though I try to keep myself busy.
