welcome hakol tov. we are happy that you joined us. It is great that you took the step of putting a filter on your phone. There is a tremendous amount to learn from the chevra here. I hope you will stick around and join the conversations.

May we keep inspiring each other.

speaking from personal experience, be prepared filter alone may not cut it. For myself, I tried one thing after the next with filters, but wasn't enough. After I got accountability few months ago, bH been amazing since then! There's a section on the site to get set up with it. Or can reach out to Hashem Help me who's helped countless people here. michelgelnier@gmail.com

If you're a bachur, very important to get hadracha in rewiring and prep for marriage in the proper time, so that all the hashchasa and lies of this stuff doesn't effect your marriage. And ?? ????? if you already are, to get help in that area. It'll change around your marriage. Hashem Help me is amazing in this area as well.

I agree 100% with your point, since I myself can attest to that, that no matter the filter, there will somehow get a fallout most of the time sadly, although it's called a filter and supposed to do the trick. (I have had Tag, Gentec and more) and while reading it the more I believe I have to do more than what I am holding.

But just want to ask and say maybe there should be an assessment regarding the new fellah, since yes he is wanting to stop, but shouldn't we work at like stages, because it's 10000% very impressive to this Chasuvei Person for getting a filter and that itself is huge to celebrate!! And obviously there are levels of filters, that may be totally not good or very easible to break through, but at his stage shouldn't we assess that first. I am trying to understand this myself, because this can be asked by a teenager I spoke with and from nothing to something is huge, so adding someone accountable I also agree with, and not that you said it wasn't big to what he was doing. I just wanted to understand that isn't there matregot (levels) correct me if I am wrong please. I am also just in the learning stage.
