Hey Welcome!!!

Although every story is unique in its details, we're all here to fight the same fight!

Hang in there, share your story, feel the warmth and you'll be'ezras Hashem succeed in turning your heart into a "lev basar"!

Here's some warmth...

Welcome Holy Heart

The video chat isnt the struggle - its the way your struggle played out.

We have all had our struggles even if its something other than video chat

Hatzlocha!

I personally have struggled with that particular challenge for some time. I second the above motion - the challenge, the resources and the people here can relate to you just the same - we are all in the same battle. Everyone has their own journey, however, and you have come to the right place to start yours!

Stick around, post more about yourself, reach out to people here, definitely try The Battle of The Generation. The amazing support and incisive insight that you can gain from posting actively on the forum cannot possibly be overstated.

Feel free to share your struggles, doubts, fears, goals, methods that have or haven't worked for you and more.

You'll be surprised how much hope there is to be found around these parts. Hope that things don't always have to be this way. Hope to change things once and for all. Hope to no longer be alone in this struggle. Hope to be free of the unbearable burden that it casts upon us. Not in vain, are the hopes of the holy jews around these parts - many have, many can and many will break free - and iyh so will you!

Welcome and Chazak V'ematz!

Welcome!

Fortunately I'm not a candidate (not that it makes me any better than you).

May Hashem be with you along your journey.

All the best!

True self
