I may be the son of God, but I am by no means the savior, not for myself nor for anybody else. I wouldn't say I've been struggling, because I haven't. I just really like sex. I don't know if I want to stop. I've tried stopping before, but then realized I didn't even want to... So it's not much of a struggle as much as it's an obsession that I guess I'm trying to curb and keep at bay.

If you're not sure you want to stop, can you explain to us why you are here?

What's wrong with liking sex?

Why would you feel bad for liking it?

What a holy username you got! You must be spiritually connected thinking about God all the time!

It's definitely an obsession, and I can't necessarily hold down a functional relationship/have complicated relationships with all my female friends.

I didn't say I feel bad. I think I'm naturally a more sexual being than your average guy, as I'm sure you probably are too. It's just inconvenient because it's looked down upon.
