teddybear i got your point...

nu? what should i do?

hahaha holy cow no don't do that.

read through the handbooks. learn to say no, learn to occupy yourself with other things.

ask yourself WHY are you acting out?

a person acts out because when they are acting out they are in a different world where they don't need to think about anything and only the pleasure.

what is this pain/unhappiness that you are escaping from most importantly, learn you are not a bad person. forgive your mistakes, make small changes. the Ribono Shel Olom still loves you, he is proud you are trying you know and feel this deep down i am sure.

u can enjoy the little things in life. like a nice day. a good peice of cake. someone returning your smile. nu, even computer games are better way to blow off steam then what's happening now.

and there is a lot of kosher movies out there too that don't need to be shmutz.

have you checked out gye's 'kosher aisle'? www.guardureyes.com/GUE/Time/time.asp what it says there is interesting though people who suffer from consistent boredom should seriously consider therapy. Boredom is often a symptom of underlying emotional issues. People that grow up emotionally healthy, usually find things that interest them (without looking at others or trying to meet unreasonable expectations) and naturally develop the internal motivation to pursue them, and therefore are not bored very often. Therapy can help you find the underlying issues that may be causing this boredom or "void" in your life.

not that you should go for therapy. just that there's more going on here than just 'boredome' like why you find things most people enjoy to be a bother... why aren't you happy to hang out in social settings - are you shy? are you an introvert?

i am trying to help you together to find out what is BEHIND all this. what is the CAUSE, not the symptoms.

theres so much to do in this world..

lol im not shy at all.... on the contruary (lehepech, by the way im very very not comfortable around women, but between man, no problem....)

ill tell you the emes, even im not shy, i still dont look for friends, i mean, if it happend that im together with ppl, ill talk and enjoy etc... But i dont look forwards for it.. "yo yo nain nain" i dont really need it.

and about what you said im not happy: well im happy and very happy when im in good relations with hashem, then a davenen has a taam, the learning even better and my wife really satisfies me....

I mean when i have porn i dont really need her... i still have relations because she bh dos not have porn and has her needs..... but i can be with her and bichlal not to be mazria...., i just fell she got her "tension" down.... and thats enough for me....

bekitzer im very happy when i behave nice.....but even then i only enjoy the davening and lerning i dont go to simches, the good food i have any way, and i "shmuesd" enough with my chavruse about pshat in rashbo,....

And then when the lust atack comes or i just want to refresh, i only have movies, by movies i mean regular hollywood movies.... you have any other idea?

i think maybe you just don't want the effort of being active in your distraction, just want to veg out and chill a bissle. ok so nu?

you like a break where you don't have t o interact with the activity, just relax empty mind etc.

but what's os bad watching some innocent kids movies or whatever? why's it a problem you do this? better this than porn.

lots of them out there, family films that will not be triggering.

what happens when u are w/ ur wife, what u say about not needing her- this ocmmon symptom of viewing porn but being w/ another person is a lot more fulfilling.

i will let the married people answer this one.

I simply dont understand, how somebody who has been exposed to porn can really get rid of it "leolmei oilomim" forever.

Welcome LvK. One of the things you will learn about if you stay here long enough (which I hope you will) is that its not about getting rid of if the addiction "forever." It's about staying sober today.

I don't have the Koach either and frankly its impossible to do it on my own. But I and you have a Friend upstairs who can help me do it. Frankly, I think my track record for trying to "fight it and kill it" alone is not very good, as is the experience of most people here. So stick it out and learn from some of the more experienced people here (not me). One thing I can assure you is that "fighting the monster" even every day sure beats "burning in hell."
