

My way - Think about G-D

Posted by anonymousBT - 25 Jul 2011 21:24

- 1) I'm a BT, but this is relevant to you even if you're an FFB. I basically have the mind of an FFB now - I know so many so closely I know that's right - and so I'm going to use this eitzah myself - starting tonight.
- 2) This is not about the internet, but it is applicable to taivas nashim (or others) bichlal.
- 3) I was 24 and had been becoming frum for a few years already when I went to a Lubavitch (BT) yeshiva.
- 4) Like all Lubav bochrim I went out to do mitzva tefillin, i.e. putting tefillin on men in the street, shops etc., every Friday afternoon. My route was all around Ben Yehuda Street, ie. the Times Square of Jerusalem. I don't think I need to explain what was there for me to look at, especially in the summer time when school/college was out for the holidays.
- 5) I SWEAR to you that as a single, red-blooded man (having previously thought about, looked and done all the things you would expect of a young irreligious man) I did not look at or think about anything I should not have, the whole time I was there! Every Friday! Not only that, but I didn't even find it a challenge.
- 6) Even when I came back to my home town, still as a young single man, and took the train to work every day, it was the same story. There was nothing to look at, and there was no challenge. I swear.
- 6) Q: How did I do it?
- 7) A: All I thought about was G-D.
- 8) It sounds simple, but it took me years of learning Chassidus to get there.
- 9) So the answer to this, for me and I hope for you, is to think about G-D and get to know him by learning Chassidus.

=====
=====

Re: My way - Think about G-D

Posted by the.guard - 26 Jul 2011 18:58

What a sweet and holy Yid!

Most of us here on the forum are looking to become BT's like you. We still have a long way to go...

The disease of addiction often needs more than Chassidus. It needs a total "remake", from the ground up.

You are lucky. Thanks for inspiring us.

=====
=====

Re: My way - Think about G-D
Posted by Tomim2B - 26 Jul 2011 19:04

Chassidus, as it is applied, is a total remake from the ground up.

=====
=====

Re: My way - Think about G-D
Posted by Mendy - 04 Aug 2011 05:25

Definitely true the times in my life that I was into learning chasidus - I had a lot easier times getting over my YH.

I should get back into it.

=====
=====

Re: My way - Think about G-D
Posted by Back on Track - 09 Aug 2011 12:12

Wow that's Really inspirational. Ein od milvado.

=====
=====

