

Moved to more appropriate forum. Beracha and hatzlacha on life in recovery.
Posted by zev_17_years - 28 Aug 2011 22:41

Posting moved to new more appropriate forum. Wishing you much hatzlacha and beracha on life in recovery.

=====
=====

Re: Maybe all my years of pain being so messed up was worth it to give others chizuk
Posted by the.guard - 30 Aug 2011 15:53

Dear Zev, I believe you. No need to call me (although I'd love to hear from you!)

You seem to have gone through a lot and have a lot to share, and we are grateful that you have come to our forum to inspire us!

(Wow. After all that despair in your post, I was so relieved to read that someone DID end up marrying you 15 years ago. B"H!! :D)

Of-course the 12-Steps were much less known 20 years ago, and there wasn't even an idea of suing the 12-Steps for lust addiction until about that time... So it's truly inspiring to hear how you broke free through sheer will-power and determination to "fix yourself". Please share with us as much as you can; we are all thirsty to hear tips from those who have been there and found a way out, no matter HOW they did it! GYE has no agenda to push the 12-Steps. We are only concerned that people don't "bash it" over here, as you clearly understand.

Please keep sharing... Perhaps you can show us, step by step, what attitudes you used and developed over time to help you stay clean.

For one, you wrote that you developed an attitude that "I can become a person that does not have these struggles". Wow. How did you come to believe this so deeply?

=====
=====

Re: Maybe all my years of pain being so messed up was worth it to give others chizuk
Posted by the.guard - 30 Aug 2011 15:57

Rage, thanks for that interesting analysis on the steps. It clarifies some things...

=====
=====

Re: Maybe all my years of pain being so messed up was worth it to give others chizuk
Posted by Yosef Hatzadik - 31 Aug 2011 15:39

censored wrote on 31 Aug 2011 14:15:

a last thought....this one is for the lawyers and law students out there...in first year law school we are taught that a federal court sitting on a case that is before them only because the parties are from different states must apply the substantive law of the state...the rule is: state law for substantive matters, federal law for procedural matters...(whether a document is admissible: federal law; whether a person is liable: state law)...i think the same can be said for judaism....if AA and the 12 steps are just procedural; i.e., a procedure to get you to become a more spiritual/religious jew then they can be used just as we use other procedural-type methods of the goyim such as cantillation, torah perakim and synagogue structure...if, however, SA and the 12 steps are substantive then a jew would be inclined to stay away...

Perfectly encapsulated!!!

=====
=====

Re: Maybe all my years of pain being so messed up was worth it to give others chizuk
Posted by gibbor120 - 31 Aug 2011 15:42

I second that!

=====
=====

Re: Maybe all my years of pain being so messed up was worth it to give others chizuk
Posted by the.guard - 31 Aug 2011 20:17

censored wrote on 31 Aug 2011 14:15:

a last thought....this one is for the lawyers and law students out there...in first year law school we are taught that a federal court sitting on a case that is before them only because the parties are from different states must apply the substantive law of the state...the rule is: state law for substantive matters, federal law for procedural matters...(whether a document is admissible: federal law; whether a person is liable: state law)...i think the same can be said for judaism....if AA and the 12 steps are just procedural; i.e., a procedure to get you to become a more spiritual/religious jew then they can be used just as we use other procedural-type methods of the goyim such as cantillation, torah perakim and synagogue structure...if, however, SA and the 12 steps are substantive then a jew would be inclined to stay away...

Interestingly put... So I assume you're saying the steps are just procedural?

=====
=====

Re: Worked for me.
Posted by zev_17_years - 31 Aug 2011 23:23

Posting moved to new more appropriate forum. Wishing you much hatzlacha and beracha on life in recovery.

=====
=====

Re: Moved to more appropriate forum. Beracha and hatzlacha on life in recovery.
Posted by the.guard - 01 Sep 2011 16:46

Which is the lucky forum that got you?

Reb Zev, I am sorry that there was a misunderstanding regarding another user who kept finding creative ways to bash the 12-Step program. I made a mistake thinking he was you. But once I realized my mistake, I also realized what a tremendous source of chizuk you can be to our website. Having broken free of this addiction with a lot of pain and hard work, you must have learned a lot - and grown tremendously. I feel bad that you want to leave, and I am a little confused as to why you think your posts are not relevant or beneficial for the users of this site. The 12-Steps is not for everyone, and your chizuk and guidance can help many yidden learn to follow your path. If anything, I should delete MY posts, which questioned your sincerity. I truly apologize, and I ask you to reconsider staying on and giving chizuk, advice and guidance to the precious yidden of our forum. Having 17 years of cleanliness through hard work, you are a GIANT to us here on GYE. Please don't leave.

=====
=====